FINANCIAL HISTORY OF COLONIAL MARYLAND

By

RICHARD T. HOOBER, A.N.A. No. 9302

GEORGE CALVERT (later Lord Baltimore), as early as 1620, purchased the southeastern peninsula of Newfoundland, but when he visited the area in 1627, he abandoned the colony because of the climate. He then asked for a grant in Virginia which was made in 1632 despite opposition by the Virginians.

The following year, Baltimore dispatched two vessels bearing some twenty gentlemen and two hundred laborers. When they arrived at the mouth of the Potomac in March, 1634, they founded the settlement of St. Mary's. Most of the gentlemen were Roman Catholics, and during the ensuing years many other Catholics made the long voyage from the British Isles and settled in Maryland to enjoy a high degree of religious liberty.

The early principal medium of exchange developed in the Colony was the "long green," tobacco, but trade with the various Indian tribes was by means of a simple currency to which the natives were accustomed, "peag" and "roanoke." The former consisted of small polished cylinders about a third of an inch long and a quarter of an inch in diameter made generally of clam or mussel shells pierced for stringing. The darkly colored pieces were the more desirable, while the more common white pieces were called "wampum peage." Roanoke could be classified along with the baser metals used in European coinage, and this type was made of flat shells, also pierced for stringing. Broad pelts of the wampum were used mainly for large transactions of land purchases.

Later, as the Colony grew, immigrants brought with them what money they had hoarded abroad, and a small amount of trade developed. There developed also a limited circulation of English and Spanish coins, as in the neighboring Colonies, which, in time were subjected to the "clipping" practice encountered everywhere. Land certificates were sometimes pressed into use, and in a broad sense can be considered as the first paper currency to circulate in the Colony.

The period of 1651-1673 saw the development of the later despised mercantilist doctrine in the British colonial trade, and the specific passage of the Navigation Laws to choke off trade with the Dutch by shipping certain enumerated articles only in ships of British registry. Later acts stipulated all articles were to be shipped first to England, and the Act of 1673, interposed duties on sugar, tobacco and other basic products of the Colonists' labor. Not a single act was ever passed for the benefit of the Colonists all added restrictions and duties one upon another causing increasing tension and hardship on this side of the Atlantic.

Eventually, Maryland had her own currency, but it appears that the mint was set up in England, and the coins were struck in the denominations of pence, groats, sixpence, and shillings. Ogilby, in his Description of the New World, wrote:

"The general way of the traffick and commerce there is chiefly by Barter, or exchange of one commodity for another; yet there wants not besides English and other foreign coins some of his Lordship's own coin, as Groats, Sixpence, and Shillings, which his Lordship, at his own charge, caused to be coined and dispersed throughout the Province. 'Tis equal in fineness of silver to English sterling, being of the same standard but of somewhat less weight. It hath on the one side his Lordship's coat of arms, stamped with his Motto, circumscribed 'Crescite et Multiplicamini,' and on the other side his Lordship's effigies, circumscribed thus: 'Caecilivs, Dominvs Terrae Mariae.' etc."

The privilege of coinage was prohibited to the Lords Baltimore after the accession of William and Mary. An Act of 1708 prescribed penalties for cutting or clipping the coins; and it appears from the terms of the Act that there were then in circulation in the Province a number of foreign coins, including Spanish, some of which were cut into quarters for use as smaller denominations.

It became increasingly clear during the early part of the Eighteenth Century, that England was not ruled by a Government of King, Lords and Commons, but was a Government of British merchants and manufacturers, who pursued their own interests. The prohibition of the use of paper money as a legal tender in the Colonies brought this fact quite forcibly to the attention of most Americans, all prior to her first association with fiat currency. The total amount was £90,000, and for their redemption, a duty of 15d was levied on every hoghead of exported tobacco. The same year saw the passage of the Molasses Act, resulting from pressure from the West Indian sugar planters, placing prohibitive duties on sugar and molasses imported to the Colonies from other than British possessions. It was becoming increasingly difficult to survive economically except on the British mercantilists' stringent terms.

An outspoken citizen of Maryland, Daniel Dulaney, estimated in 1739, that the Southern tobacco growers would have been able to realize at

"Maryland" watermark on one shilling sixpence, issue of 1748

of whom were striving to make ends meet with meager crops and limited manufacturing and commerce. During this period, Maryland remained agricultural, most Colonists living on plantations, with tobacco the only export of any importance. The English merchants acted as agents for the planters, sending manufactured goods of all kinds in exchange for the tobacco, but practically no money which, as the Colonies continued to grow, kept them in a continual state of barter. Most obligations, payments of all kinds, and even salaries were customarily paid in leaf by the pound. As the number of settlers increased, soil erosion, lack of proper inspection of the crops, and the enormous increase in tobacco acreage caused tobacco prices to drop very low, resulting in depreciation in the "necessity" money in use.

The first issue of paper money in Maryland was made in 1733, whereas nine of her sister Colonies had made similar emissions at least nine years least £3 more for every hoghead of tobacco sent abroad had they been permitted to ship directly to the continent instead of through English ports. This caused heavier duties and heavier taxes as well as further reliance on additional paper money in 1740, the notes being dated June 2. The same year, General Oglethorpe led an unsuccessful expedition of Southern Colonists against the Spanish outpost of St. Augustine, in Florida.

The Southern Colonies, situated more remotely from the shipping centers of Boston, New York and Philadelphia, were not as prosperous as the Northern Colonies, nor did they become as involved in many of the territorial struggles of England, France and Spain. The Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, in 1748, proved to be only a truce as far as the American Colonists were concerned, for the Ohio Valley and the Cherokee country continued to be areas of conflict, and considerable fighting in the West Indies.

The same year, on October 1, Maryland made her third emission, while depreciation of her previous issues continued, currently being worth only half value from the time they were struck. The notes were engraved with the coat-of-arms of the Colony, and the motto CRESCITE ET MULTIPLICAMINI. By 1749, the frontiers were being pushed farther West, the wilderness was being penetrated and settled. The Ohio Company erected a trading post at Cumberland, Md., as the Colony struggled to expand.

On April 6, 1751, another issue was enacted, of similar design and engraving to the preceding, in a further ated money, they generally prescribed the ends to which the money was to be put. Governor Sharpe claimed that the Maryland Assembly was trying to usurp all powers of the judicial, executive and legislative branches. The acquisition of supplies could not be voted because the upper and lower houses were deadlocked in squabbling of their own. They also refused to cooperate with Virginia in an expedition against the French and Indians.

Contrary to very explicit orders from the Crown, the Maryland Assembly continued to issue paper money, causing further depreciation. As a result, Marylanders acquired the dubious distinction of being the most ill-humored, quarrelsome, and uncooperative of His Majesty's subjects, and effort to satisfy the demand for additional currency. In all probability, had England dispensed with her penurious policy and allowed specie to be paid to the Colonists the English pound sterling would have remained the standard of value despite the Revolution.

It was not until July 14, 1756, that Maryland authorized other bills of credit. The same year witnessed the beginning of the French and Indian War. Earlier, the Governor of Maryland, with the Governors of several other Colonies, met to plan attacks on the French. War was formally declared between the French and English.

Apparently, outside opposition to the British caused the Colonial Assemblies to stiffen their resistance to the Crown, yet these victories were unheralded, for attention was focused on foreign affairs. The Assemblies greatly strengthened their financial control gaining certain rights relating to expenditures. When they appropriwere, as their Governor complained, "Levellers in their Principles and impatient of Rule, full of their own opinions and entirely deaf to Arguments and Reason." From their somewhat sheltered position, the Assembly left the disagreeable business of fighting the war to the more exposed Colonies. Conditions remained much the same until the war was over and the Treaty of Paris was signed in 1763.

The following year, the issuance of paper money was strictly forbidden in all the Colonies, extending the original ban placed on the New England Colonies. This legislation did not entirely suppress its emission. A loophole was found in the issuance of Treasury notes, which, not being legal tender, were redeemed after a short period by money derived from taxation. The notes of the loan banks also continued to circulate after 1764. Ten years later about $12,000,000 worth were in regular circulation, in Maryland alone.

During the Stamp Act crisis of 1765, the Governor of Maryland, rather than entrust the supply of stamps to the militia, ordered the shipmaster who brought the stamps to American shores to keep them aboard and head for some distant port. A letter from a gentleman in London to his friend in America discussed the right of Parliament to tax Marylanders directly, which the charter of Maryland denied. Americans in all the Colonies insisted that this provision ought to be read between the lines of every charter, whereas Maryland's charter was the only one to carry such a specific proviso. Surely, Parliament's disregard of the exemptions written into the charter strengthened the Colonists' claims that no unfair taxes be imposed.

Immediately the Stamp Act was passed in May, 1765, the citizens of the will of the Crown. The New York Assembly was suspended and the Townshend Acts led to a town meeting in Boston to adopt nonimportation agreements against the new list of taxable commodities.

Maryland issued another series of notes, dated January 1, 1767, with woodcuts designed by T. Sparrow and printed by Jonas Green, Annapolis, in eleven denominations from $1/9 to $8.00. At this time, Franklin observed that "Every man in England seems to consider himself as a piece of sovereign over America; seems to jostle himself into the throne with the King, and talks of our subjects in the colonies."

One shilling sixpence, Maryland issue of April 6, 1751

Maryland became aroused. The Assembly met and adopted a set of resolutions in the form of a bill of rights, which set forth that the first settlers had brought with them and transmitted to their descendants, all their rights, privileges and immunities under the Magna Carta, and that Lord Baltimore had obtained for his Colonists exemptions from royal taxes. It was due to Lord Baltimore's foresight that Maryland was the only Colony that could claim exemption of alien taxation.

Finally, in 1766, the hated act was repealed, but not before other disagreeable measures were passed. The Quartering Act added fuel to the flames. Patrick Henry introduced a series of resolutions in the Virginia House of Burgesses challenging the position of the British Government. The Stamp Act Congress met at New York in October to draw up a declaration of rights and liberties. Following the repeal of the Stamp Act, the Declaratory Act emphasized the rights of the King to make laws to bind the colonies in all respects to Another paper money emission made its appearance on October 1, 1768. About the same time British troops arrived in Boston only to be denied quarters. Sir Robert Eden, the last Royal Governor of Maryland, was appointed in this year, continuing in office until 1776, when all Royal authority ceased. As he was a kind and accomplished gentleman, the Whigs permitted him to remain in the Colony without restraint until some dispatches from Lord George Germain were intercepted, whereupon he was arrested. Later, he embarked for England.

The plight of the planters became more acute for "soil exhaustion and the mounting burden of fixed charges and debt" contributed to their woes. Dulaney estimated that "the Artificial Value of a Bale of English Cloth arising from Taxes, Monopolies and ill-judged Laws" was over fifty per cent of its original worth. The merchants were accused by the Marylanders of abusing their privilege of monopoliz-ing colonial trade by making the Colonies a dumping ground for shop-worn, unsalable merchandise; cheating on weights and measures; and what perhaps was most unforgivable of all, sending them goods which were not "genteel, well manufactured, and fashionable."

In 1769 Parliament advised the enforcement of a statute of Henry VIII vintage allowing the Government to bring to England for trial those alleged to have committed treason outside the realm. A protest was immediately adopted in the Virginia House of Burgesses when this news reached American shores.

On November 28, 1769, the Maryland Lower House discussed the ad-of 1766. The Province owned £34,000 and the Act directed the London trustees to sell the rest at not less than fifty per cent above par. It empowered the commissioners in Annapolis to draw bills of exchange and lend them at interest the same as bills of credit. The income from "ordinary" and peddlers' licenses were to be paid into the loan office by the sheriff, and those funds also to be loaned out. The principal and interest of all loans was made payable in gold, silver, or bills of credit of either former emission, and during the last year that the emission was to circulate, in the form of bills of exchange. This emission, as well as the gold and silver paid in, were again to be loaned out, but the bills of the 1766 emission were to be kept in the office visability of a new paper money emission. On the 29th a resolution was passed emitting £300,000, issued on security of real and personal property. The act was approved by the Governor on December 20th, and provided for two appointed commissioners to take charge of all outstanding notes, collateral, etc., of the issue dated 1767. They were to authorize the printing of $318,000.00, but were to sign only $300,000.00 of this amount, retaining the balance to replace worn and mutilated bills. The new notes were to be lent in sums of not less than $100.00 on bonds of real estate owners in the Province and the bonds had to be free from encumbrances.

At this same session, money was appropriated for the building of a State House, and it was further provided in the same Act that whatever was needed above the sum in the Treasurer's hands should be contributed by the commissioners for emitting bills of credit. It was estimated that £24,000 of bank stock would be enough to sink the emission for destruction by a joint committee of the Assembly. It was hoped that all money handled by the loan office would be considered as a general fund for retiring the bills of credit, and were to be redeemed between October 10, 1781 and April 10, 1782. To endeavor to prevent their depreciation, the commissioners were forbidden to lend any funds when the exchange ration was below 4s 6d per dollar. (Paper Money in Maryland by Dr. K. L. Behrens.)

The ensuing issue, authorized in 1769 but dated March 1, 1770, was also struck in eleven denominations. It was printed by A. C. and W. Green, Annapolis, of a design similar to the preceding issue. By October 30th, the loan office books showed loans totalling £83,407 14s 7d, including bills of exchange, gold and silver. The anticipated revenue was not enough to supply the ever-increasing demand for loans and circulating medium.

The "Boston Massacre" of March 5th further aroused the smouldering hatred of the British troops quartered in the city. The British officer was tried and acquitted, being ably defended by Josiah Quincey and John Adams, but propaganda and prejudice were at work. Many duties on paper, glass and printers' colors were repealed, but the tea tax remained. The merchants worked for some kind of reconciliation, which resulted in a form of truce, later broken by the arbitrary deeds of the Crown officials.

Again in 1771, the Lower House sent up another bill for emitting more paper money, but due to the bad feeling that existed between the two

Earlier, in March of 1773, the Virginia House of Burgesses appointed a Committee of Correspondence to keep in touch with her sister colonies. In December of 1774, citizens of Boston held the "Tea Party," as a protest against the tea tax levied to provide relief for the East India Company.

Some of the funds raised from the 1774 emission were used, together with other money raised from tonnage duties, to join with Virginia in erecting and maintaining a lighthouse at Cape Henry. The funds were to be managed by the loan office commissioners. Throughout most of Maryland's early financial history, honest houses, no further expansion of the notes in circulation was attempted in Maryland until 1773, when a new Act was passed, ordering the loan office commissioners to strike off $480,000.00 and £78,000 sterling. Of the total, two-thirds was to be loaned to counties for public purposes and for building a road west from Fort Frederick. The other third was to replace torn bills, of which $80,000 was to be held at the disposal of the Assembly. These bills were to be redeemed between October 10, 1785, and April 10, 1786. The act was quite similar to the 1769 Act, with the exception of the omission of the clause guarding against depreciation. Some of the withheld $80,000 was used to pay the journal of accounts of 1773-74, while £1,455 of the sterling quota was used for covering the State House with copper instead of slate, as had been originally planned.

Notes printed under the Act of 1773 were dated April 10, 1774, and were of similar design to the preceding issues and in the same denominations.

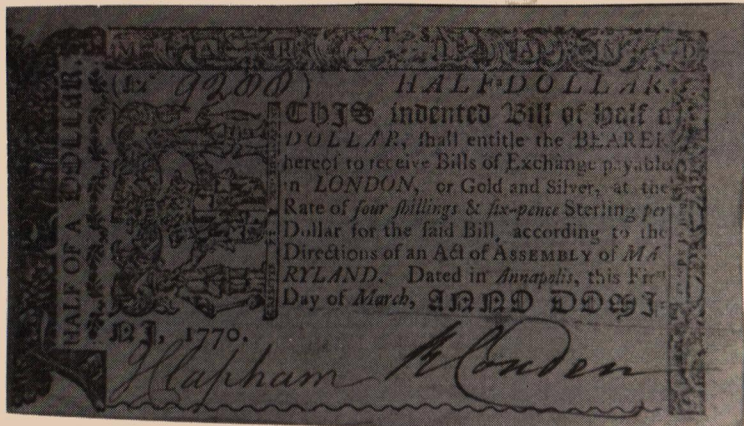

efforts were made to maintain and closely control the money in circulation to avoid depreciation, despite legal tender clauses included in the Acts of 1769 and 1773. Paper of the Province remained close to par with specie during the continuance of the proprietary government, and it was not until independence became quite apparent, about August of 1776, that the notes became less favorable. Severe depreciation resulted.

In June, 1774, a convention consisting of committees appointed by various towns and communities assembled at Annapolis to elect delegates to the First Continental Congress. After the election the convention adjourned, but from time to time it remained the depository of sovereign power of the Colonists and became the real government superseding the old Assembly. The convention concluded its sessions December 12, 1774. During this period it adopted "The Association of the Free Men of Maryland," and this became a kind of charter of the Colony until the Constitution of 1776. Steps were also taken toward freedom in the extension of the franchise to "all free men having an estate of £40, and without religious distinction." Now for the first time since the Catholic Lords Baltimore, both Protestant and Catholic citizens could vote together.

Last ditch opposition to independence came from the Middle Colonies. When Congress urged the Maryland Council of Safety to seize Governor Eden, the Council refused, and declared Congress was attempting to encroach upon Colonial rights and make itself dictator of the continent. For this display of ill-feeling, Presi-tween the parent state and Colonies rendered it impossible for everyone like him, "sincerely and steadily attached to the former, to continue in the country." On June 4, 1776, he, with others, were summoned to appear before the patriot Committee of Observation, and on June 11th, refusing to give bonds for his conduct, he was ordered to leave the country before August 1st. He was allowed to remain and hold his office, however, until April, 1777, when he boarded a British man-of-war and returned to England, where he published an interesting collection of his "Letters from America" in 1792.

Half dollar, Maryland issue of March 1, 1770

dent John Hancock pointedly snubbed the Maryland delegates, but they continued to delay action desired by the radicals. John Adams observed, "Maryland was so eccentric a Colony—sometimes so hot, sometimes so cold," that he wished "it would exchange Places with Hallifax." Most of the spokesmen for independence were from the Northern Colonies, British troops were close at hand, duties and taxes were directed against them mainly, the Coercive Acts, the Boston Port Act, the Massachusetts Government Act, the Administration of Justice Act, all were keenly felt by the New Englanders much more than their Southern sympathizers.

A signer of the 1774 issue, William Eddis, came to America in 1769, settling at Annapolis, under the protection of Sir Robert Eden. Eddis held office as surveyor of the customs and was intimately acquainted with the prominent men of the various political parties "until the unfortunate misunderstanding" which arose be-

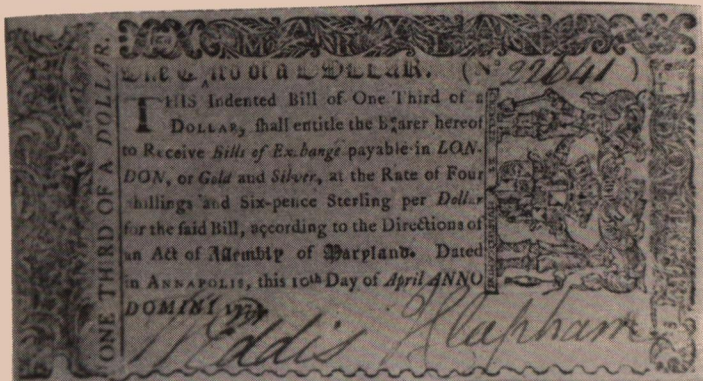

He wrote on May 28, 1774, "All America is in a flame! I hear strange language every day. The Colonists are ripe for the measures that will tend to the preservation of what they call their natural liberties. I enclose you the resolves of our citizens; THEY have caught the general contagion. Expresses are flying from province to province. It is the universal opinion here that the mother country cannot support a contention with these settlements if they abide steady to the letter and spirit of their associations. Where will these measures end? Imagination anticipates, with honor, the most dreadful consequences. If the measures adopted at home are founded on the principle of justice, it will become administration to be firm and decisive. If they are not, it will be advisable, even on the face of interest, not to abandon the substance for the shadow. True policy will suggest the expediency of embracing a conciliatory system." The resolutions referred to above were adopted May 25, 1774. (Charles Carroll of Carrollton, 1732-1832, by Joseph Gurn.)

Eddis became Secretary to Governor Eden, and was a close friend to Carroll. By July, 1775, the real Government had slipped from Eden's hands, and even the Tories admitted the fact. In a letter to an English friend, Eddis wrote, "Government is now almost totally annihilated, and power transferred to the multitude. Speech is becoming dangerous; letters are intercepted; confidence betrayed; and every measure evidently tends to the most fatal extremes; the sword is drawn, and without some providential change of measures, the blood of thousands will be shed in this of 7s 6d per dollar, not later than January 1, 1786.

As with the earlier issues, these notes were easily counterfeited, and plagued the authorities constantly, and when another convention met in December, it added a new emission, dated December 7, 1775, including enough money to recall the July issue, thus accounting for the current rarity of specimens of that issue. About half of the £200,666 13s 4d total was assigned for use by the Council of Safety. The pledge of redemption made by the previous convention was repeated, and the expiration date for the new emission remained the same as for the July issue. The Maryland delegates to unnatural contest . . . The inhabitants of this province are incorporated under military regulations . . . In Annapolis here are two complete companies; . . . almost every hat is decorated with a cockade; and the churlish drum and fife are the only music of the times."

Also in July, what is now considered a very rare issue, dated July 26, 1775, in eight denominations bearing allegorical vignettes, was printed in order to supply arms and men, and to carry forward the war effort. The total amount of the issue was £100,000 authorized in bills of credit, and parts of the total were to be used to further the manufacture of saltpeter, for erecting a powder mill, and for other military purposes. The bills were to be signed by one of sixteen appointees, and the convention pledged the faith of the Maryland Colonists to redeem this money by taxes or other provisions in gold and silver at the rate Congress were urged to have the plates for the new issue made in Philadelphia, and following some delay, the Council of Safety became so hard-pressed for money that it wrote to the deputies that if they did not soon send the plates and necessary paper the treasury would be empty! This embarrassing delay was one of several that occurred, for the Continental Congress was also making plates for its own currency and having notes printed as quickly as possible to supply the governmental and military expenditures that were so essential.

The first emission of Congress amounted to $2,000,000, and the amount increased to $3,000,000 by summer before the notes were actually printed by Hall and Sellers. As Congress had no power to tax the Colonists directly, it assigned to each Colony a quota of the total amount which each was to redeem. To add some measure of force, it was decreed that anyone who refused to accept the notes or spoke disrespectfully of the money was to be treated as an enemy of the country.

Throughout the Colonies, the news of Lexington and Concord in April, brought demands for vengeance and an end to all thought of compromise with the mother country. It now appeared certain that Americans would be forced to fight for their lives and liberties, and preparations for a long war were speedily adopted. Ticonderoga and Crown Point were captured, Washington was made commander of the Continental Army, the Battle of Bunker Hill, and Arnold's march on Quebec, filled the thoughts of Congress and the citizenry and the appearance of Paine's "Common Sense," in 1776, crystallized public opinion in favor of total independence.

no Value." For the most part, those who had substantial property were antagonistic, or at best lukewarm, in their reaction to the spread of paper money. Debtors, such as Samuel Chase, who was always up to his ears in debt, and not too scrupulous about making his creditors' lives miserable, were supporters of fiat money.

Accordingly, under authorization made by the convention in August, 1776, the amount of money in circulation in Maryland was increased by $535,111, redeemable in January, 1786. The notes were dated August 14. As it was necessary to use $120,000 of the December issue for redemption of those struck in July, this sum in the new bills was set aside for that purpose. Just how much of the July issue was redeemed finally is not

Early in 1776, on March 13, Charles Carroll of Carrollton was on a committee of council to "prepare a scheme for the emission of bills of credit to enable the state to carry on its defenses against British invasion." The first State Assembly passed "An Act to make the bills of credit emitted by Acts of Assembly and resolves of the late Convention a legal tender." Carroll then further expressed himself rather strongly on the subject: "Should a Law pass to make the Continental and Our Currencies a legal Tender in all cases, it will Surpass in Iniquity all the Acts of the British Parliamt agt America. The Parliament only declares it has a right to take away Our Property the duties they have imposed are trifling. But the Act wh you say will Pass, takes away a Real and Universal Medium of Commerce by Substituting a Medium wh Eventually may be of known, but a report to the convention of November 11, 1776, indicated that up to that time about £39,000 had been turned in and destroyed. With the signing of the Declaration of Independence, and the increasing amount of Continental currency being struck, depreciation of all Colonial notes became more serious and damaging. The War of Independence was being fought, the old proprietary government overthrown, and bank stock, which constituted the sinking fund reserve, was in enemy territory. Nevertheless, the House of Delegates passed a bill displacing the old commissioners and appointing new ones who were to draw the bills of exchange on London as the Act of 1766 directed. The Senate desired to amend the bill to allow the bank stock trustees to honor the bills of exchange, and also wished the holders of the bills of credit to be given state bills of credit instead, if they preferred.

Numismatic Vignettes

■ Illustrated here is an early note of the Bank of New York, which was organized in 1784. Although the ink of 168 years ago is somewhat faded and the paper is a little discolored, the date, payee's name and signatures are still legible. It is something of a thrill to find a note bearing the signature of William Seaton, the Bank's first cashier, and Gulian Verplanck, its fourth president. Best known among the historic names connected with founding of "The Bank" is Alexander Hamilton, who was one of

with the comment "May not exist." To set the record right, we offer the following quotation from a letter from Bureau of Engraving and Printing Director H. J. Holtzclaw: "A check of our records on the plates made for gold certificates of the 1928A series indicates that no printings were made. Gold certificates of the 1934 series in $100, $1,000, $10,000 and $100,000 denominations were issued only to Federal Reserve banks. . . . No gold certificates of the 1934 series were issued into general circulation."

Treasury warrant No. 1 was drawn on the Bank of New York on September 13, 1789, and was signed by Hamilton as the first Secretary of the Treasury. Aaron Burr was a stockholder when the Bank was incorporated and, in 1799, contrived to found its first rival, the Manhattan Company. Isaac Roosevelt was one of the original directors and its third president. Today the main office of the Bank of New York is at 48 Wall Street.

■ If you read "Paper Money" on p. 739 of the June issue, you should know that it contained an error, as pointed out by William A. Philpott, Jr., A.N.A. No. 1978. The statement that there are small size gold certificates of 1934 is technically correct but misleading to collectors. [Friedberg's book lists $10 and $20

■ What's new in coin collecting? We don't keep up very well, but can report that some things are not as new as some may think. In the proceedings of the 1926 annual convention, held at Washington, D. C., with a total registration of less than seventy persons, there are illustrations of both sides of a triple-struck 1863 Indian cent which Farran Zerbe had obtained since the previous convention. So collecting mint error coins is not very new. By the way, who has this choice 1863 triple-struck cent now?

In the 1926 volume of The Numismatist, we counted a total of 570 pages of non-advertising material, of which 120 pages were devoted to paper money (mostly other than U. S. issues) and 50 to medals and tokens. Maybe this doesn't surprise you but we didn't realize that these fields of collecting were so prominent thirty-five years ago.—GLENN S.

CSA ISSUES OF 1861 IN PANORAMA

Introduction

THE paper money issued by the Treasury Department of the Confederate States of America has been classified and discussed in many ways. However, there are other interesting aspects of these century-old notes. Disclosure has come from continued search through the remarkably large number of Confederate records and papers that survived.

The Treasury notes dated "1861" were issued through 1861 and in much greater volume during most of 1862. The various denominations appear in an astonishing variety of designs. This resulted from the rapidly changing fortunes of the Confederacy, the complications faced by its Treasury Department in starting "from scratch" and the resort to various means to provide the tremendous expansion of currency needed.

In tracing these developments the chart, Fig. 1, is presented — a sort of chronological panorama. It shows a new "highway" plotted from detail information on record in the original Confederate Register, a group of some twenty large ledgers, now in the National Archives, Washington, D. C.

Until almost the end of the conflict, every Treasury note issued by the Confederacy of denomination of $1 and higher was autograph-signed by the Register and the Treasurer or their deputies and individually numbered. The Register records this information and "series" letter or number identification in various dated entries. Thus, sure identification of the types and of many varieties was made possible, and information was available on numbers issued, dates, signers, etc. Extensive summaries of this data and compilations from other captured Treasury Department papers were made by Raphael P. Thian eighty years ago. Many listings have been based on the Register and Thian's work, both of which have been invaluable for detecting counterfeits, exposing bogus notes and "ghost" varieties, and for developing considerable background information.

Plotted on the chronological chart (Fig. 1) are horizontal shaded bars, one for each type note of the 1861 issues. The number in each bar is the type number, according to the author's book Confederate Treasury Notes. Table I lists these numbers with a brief description of each type, crossindexed to other numbering systems.

The bars are arranged vertically, generally in the order of the date of first entry in the Register. The length of each bar indicates the period during which the note was being issued. The dates alongside each bar are those of the first and last entries appearing in the Register for that type of note in the column headed "Date of Acknowledgment and Remarks." These may be the dates of acknowledgement of receipt of notes from local depositories of the Treasury Department, from other Departments, or from private banks, but it is believed they correspond closely to the actual dates the notes were first and last issued.

As the eye passes downward over the chart the progression of the bars develops a panorama of the continuing addition of types in the various denominations, and the multiplicity of engraving firms producing the notes. Conspicuous is the spread of "1861" notes into the year 1862, during which year by far the greater number were issued.

Especially noteworthy with several denominations is the large number of types, most of them with diverse designs. The reader can imagine the confusion that would ensue today, even in the absence of an emergency, if the United States Treasury should issue during little more than a twelve month period, as did the Confederate Treasury, nine different designs of $5 notes, ten of the $10 value, six of the $20, six of the $50, and three of the $100 value.

The Confederate Treasury notes ranged from a few with excellent designs engraved on copper or steel plates and printed in two colors, to others of commonplace design, printed only in black from lithographic stones. With only one exception, none was printed on the back, undoubtedly on account of shortages of equipment, materials and skilled manpower. In circulation also during this time were notes from fractional to high denominations issued by states, local governments and banks.

Counterfeits soon appeared. Whether money offered in everyday dealings was a newly authorized issue or a counterfeit was a continuing problem.

From a pictorial point of view, the Treasury notes of 1861 cover an extraordinarily wide, interesting range. Many designs were copied from state and local bank bills of Northern and Southern states. The classical tradition is evident from the illustrations of mythological deities: Ceres, Goddess of Agriculture; Moneta, Goddess of Money; Minerva, Goddess of War; Justice, Liberty, the Union, the Confederacy are depicted. George Washington and other Revolutionary heroes appear, as well as others of later national prominence, such as Andrew Jackson and John C. Calhoun. Some notes show officers of the Confederacy and others prominent in it. Many note designs accurately picture railroad trains, sailing ships, steamboats, and cotton cultivation.

It should be kept in mind that production by lithography had not progressed beyond the process which depended upon the repulsion between water and greasy inks that is characteristic of a certain kind of limestone first found in Bavaria. However, this process produced results with remarkably fine detail. It has long since been superseded by much more rapid ones, using new materials and techniques that have little resemblance to those of a century ago.

Great credit is due to those lithographic establishments in the Confederacy for the quantity production of Treasury notes, subject to frequent changes and coincident with other heavy demands on their facilities. There were many handicaps from shortages of equipment, materials and skilled manpower. The production of notes engraved from metal plates suffered much longer from difficulties of this nature. As a result, about 85% of the 1861 notes are lithographs.

NEW MEXICAN COUNTERFEIT?

By

DR. JAMES C. REAVIS, A.N.A. No. 41258

Most collectors of Mexican coins are familiar with the usual counterfeit cob pieces, some of which were made hundreds of years ago and some quite recently. They have probably also encountered silver-plated trial pieces in copper which were circulated in Mexico as money. Recently several dealers have been defrauded by facsimiles of the revolutionary (1916) Oaxaca sixty pesos gold. Other revolutionary counterfeits, notably the "Muera Huerta" silver peso, have been on the market in increasing numbers.

Apparently the rare 1863 eight reals of Real del Catorce (CE) has now appeared in modern facsimile form. I recently received this item on approval from a dealer. Photographs of the obverse and reverse are shown. The edge is not shown but will be described, because it strongly suggests the falsity of this piece.

The obverse presents several points of suspicion. The c of CE is not sharp at its opening. The lower point of the c extends too high and there is a suggestion of a line across the entire opening. The interior of the c contains excess metal and its texture is irregular and does not match the rest of the coin's surface. The E is weak. At its open side between the upper and lower arms there is a triangle with its apex pointed to the right (outward). The interior of the R in 8R shows abnormal diagonal striations and this same texture is seen within the 0 of 10 and the 2 and 0 of 20. The B, E, R and T of LIBERTAD show unusual vertical striations. The L of the assayer's initials shows an appendage from its vertical bar slanting downward to the right. It can be observed that the entire obverse is different from the original in the placement of letters and figures.¹

The reverse shows the usual eagle design with nothing especially remarkable until comparison is made with the genuine coin. It is then seen that the eagle and snake are entirely different in minor features from the original; for example, position of the snake in relation to the eagle's head, proximity of the legend to the tips of the wreath, and details of the cactus.

The fields of this piece are quite granular with many small die defects of linear type and a few pimple-like die defects, but the surface is not different enough from other 8R's to cause grave suspicion. The piece is in the usual range of weight (27.13 gms.)² X-ray studies show no internal defects and no difference from other 8R's in X-ray opacity. It is undoubtedly of silver alloy of approximately the official specification. The specimen I examined showed an edge dent (added, perhaps, to suggest authenticity). In general features the coin would grade EF to AU.

One of the most questionable features of the coin is its edge which is slightly convex rather than straight across. The herringbone is very weak and is lacking in central detail which on authenticated coins is clear, giving each herringbone a resemblance to a steer's head. The fine detail and sharpness of even a worn coin are lacking here.

I would postulate that the planchet was made of metal obtained by melting down genuine 8R's, that the reverse die was an old die which escaped destruction and was probably used unchanged. I believe the obverse die was altered by filling and reengraving an 1863 die of another mint. The edge appears to have been made by some device other than a collar which was used on the original strikes. In any event, it seems likely that the piece is a recent product of a contemporary counterfeiter.

Author's Note: I would like to thank Dr. Alberto F. Pradeau for his kindness in sending me the genuine coin from his collection for examination and comparison.

¹Comparison was made with a coin from the collection of Dr. Alberto F. Pradeau.

²The coin from Dr. Pradeau's collection weighs 26.90 gms.

THE RARE COIN PITCH

$29,000 for an 1804 silver dollar? $15,500 for a 1913 nickel? $10,000 for a 1793 "large cent"? Maybe you think these rewards are possible — if you believe everything you read. An increasing number of ads have been spotted around the country offering these, and comparably fantastic sums, for anyone who happens to come across one of the rare coins.

What the ads don't say is that only a dozen or fewer of the coins listed above are in existence, and their owners are well known. The same is true of all the other sensational offers for rare coins. They are a come-on to inexperienced coin collectors who suddenly suspect there may be a fortune concealed in the piggy bank.

The real purpose of these ads is to get neophyte collectors to shell out for a catalog, which, the advertiser says, will tell him how he can make a fortune from his loose change. Hundreds of thousands of people have taken this bait. The Post Office Department has cracked down on some of the promoters for misuse of the mails in making false promises.

If you have coins that you think might be worth something, your best bet is to take them to a long-established coin dealer or to someone who is a member of the American Numismatic Association. — Reprinted by permission from Changing Times, The Kiplinger Magazine, April, 1962.

WALTER SHIRLAW, PAPER MONEY DESIGNER

By

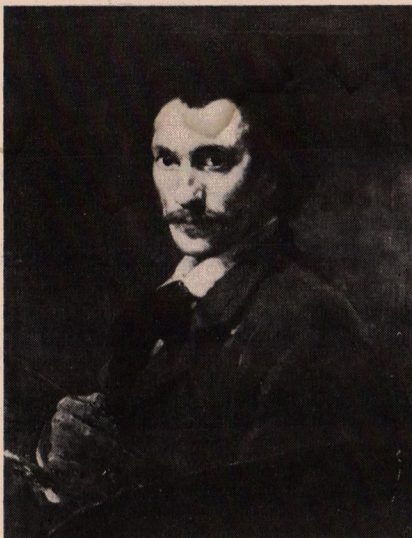

GLENN B. SMEDLEY, LM 296

CERTAINLY one of the attractions which paper money holds to the collector or student is the work which artists—many of them eminent—have recorded thereon. Perhaps no other commercial commodity has had so much artistic talent lavished on its production. But, with few exceptions, even the most ardent collectors of paper money do not know the identity of those responsible for the beautiful specimens in their albums.

True, most paper money bears the imprint of the company which produced it; and the production process has much to do with the appearance of a note. Even a beautiful design can be poorly executed. And a few engravers have left identifications on their work, or we learn of them through specimens (usually proofs) preserved by the engraver himself. However, with relatively few exceptions, the engraver's skill was his ability to catch the original artist's meaning and translate a painting or sketch to the steel plate.

The subject of this article, Walter Shirlaw, was one of those who supplemented his income from pure art work by doing bank note designs. Like many artists who did commercial work for the same reason, he considered that note designing was abasing; consequently we find little reference to it in the records of his work.

Walter Shirlaw was born on August 6, 1838, in Paisley, Scotland, where his father was a maker of fine hand looms for weaving Paisley shawls. The family moved to New York City when Walter was only three years old, and here he apprenticed himself to a bank note company at the age of twelve. We are told that he did designing and engraving for five years to gain experience, while attending evening school and art classes. His first exhibit at the New York Academy of Design was in 1861. Again in 1865 he turned to bank note work, this time with the Western Bank Note & Engraving Company in Chicago, to earn enough money to educate himself abroad. During his five-year sojourn with Western, The Art Institute of Chicago was conceived, and he was active in its founding.

In 1870 he started for Paris but finding it under siege by the German army, he turned to Munich where he studied under Wagner, Ramburgh and Kaulbach. Upon returning to America, he settled in New York where he lived and worked except during trips abroad. He died during his second journey to Spain the day after Christmas, 1909.

He was a National Academician, and one of the founders and the first president of the Water-Color-Etching and Mural Painters' Society. Medals came to him from six cities, plus an honorable mention from Paris. He is represented in half a dozen of the country's museums of art and in the Library of Congress. A catalog of a memorial collection of Shirlaw's works, which was exhibited in the Art Institute of Chicago in January, 1911, lists sixty-six paintings in oil, fifty-three water colors, and many pastels and drawings; yet some of his best works were not included.

As previously stated, examples of his more commercial works, and information relative to them, are quite scant. The Century Magazine of November, 1893, has an article written and illustrated by Walter Shirlaw. Under the title "Artists' Adventures; The Rush to Death," it relates an incident which Shirlaw witnessed in 1890 on a mission to the Cheyenne Indian Reservation on Tongue River, Montana. In a later issue of the same magazine we find an illustration of the interior "Dome of the Manufacturers and Liberal Arts Building" at the World's Columbian Exposition, "Painted by Walter Shirlaw." There is also an illustration captioned "'Pearl' by Walter Shirlaw," which is an enlargement of one of the four figures in the foregoing illustration.

Perhaps not exactly commercial work, but fittingly mentioned here, are eight female figures, each about seven and a half feet high, which adorn part of the vault of the West Corridor in the Library of Congress. Shirlaw designed each figure to represent one of the sciences: Archaeology, Astronomy, Botany, Chemistry, Geology, Mathematics, Physics and Zoology. Typical of most of his female representations, the observer will notice that these evince vigor and vitality to a marked degree.

With the foregoing as a prelude to what he would have considered the least of his accomplishments, we turn to his work in the bank note and financial paper field. The author's collection includes one bank note, a proof $5 of the Bank of Hamilton, Ontario, which was produced by the Western Bank Note Company and uses a Shirlaw vignette on its left end. The identical vignette appears on the proof of a first mortgage gold bond of the Pittsburgh Pure Beer Brewing Company and in this case it includes the typical signature "W. Shirlaw" that is found on his purely art works. We have a die proof of this vignette, also bearing the signature.

Another bank note engraving signed by Shirlaw is represented by a die proof and was used, with the signature, on the stock certificate of the World's Columbian Exposition. With a minor alteration, the central figure of it was used on a $1,000 debenture bond of the Chicago Edison Company. We have two other die proofs which bear Shirlaw's signature as designer, one being a group of three females called "Architecture, Commerce & Mechanics" and bearing the imprint "Copyright, 1897, by the Western Bank Note Co., Chicago." It was engraved by Charles Schlecht. The other bears the imprint of International Bank Note Company; the monogram initials "WS" indicate that Shirlaw designed it, and another monogram of "LJH" is that of engraver Lorenzo J. Hatch. This proof is entitled "Electra," but is actually an engraving of Shirlaw's "Physics" in the Library of Congress. Several other engravings are credited to drawings by Shirlaw in the record kept by that prolific engraver G. F. C. Smillie of his work.

The central figure of one very well-known piece of United States paper money came from the brush of Walter Shirlaw after he had left the bank note companies. According to Thomas F. Morris,¹ it was the recommendation of Claude M. Johnson, Chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing under the Cleveland administration, that a new series of notes (1896 Silver Certificates) be issued with designs of artistic excellence. The father of Thomas F. Morris, whose name was the same and whom we shall refer to as Thomas F. Morris, Sr., was employed as Chief of the Engraving Division at the Bureau, and several recognized artists were called upon to submit designs for the series of notes. This was in the early part of 1894.

In the end, Will Low made the principal design for the face of the $1, entitled History Instructing Youth. The design on the $2 certificate was the work of Edwin Bashfield and shows Science presenting Steam and Electricity to Commerce and Manufacturing. Walter Shirlaw created the dynamic design that we know so well on the $5 certificate of the series. Engravings were made of these designs by Charles Schlecht ($1 note) and G. F. C. Smillie ($2 and $5 notes), with border designs and lettering engraved by several other Bureau men. Thomas F. Morris, Sr., was responsible for designing the backs, and for working out many details of the plates. He did not consider Shirlaw's original design to be in proper bank note style; accordingly he made alterations such that the final die retained Shirlaw's central design, portraying Electricity as the dominant force, only.

It had been the original intention to carry the 1896 series of silver certificates on to $10, $20 and $50 denominations, and it is the loss of numismatists of today that this was never done. However, Walter Shirlaw did complete the central design for the face of a $10 certificate, and it was engraved by Charles Schlecht as die No. 4166. The diaries of Thomas F. Morris, Sr., indicate that a design for the back of this note was completed, but we have no evidence that it progressed beyond the model stage. Although never used on a note, die No. 4166 was used on the plate for printing the $1,000 Coupon Bond, Series of 1898. The illustration herewith is from a Bureau photograph, with everything surrounding the central design blocked out. In accordance with a Treasury Department ruling, the illustration is one and a half times the size of the original engraving. The title of the design, "Agriculture and Forestry," is shown in the base on which the principal figures stand.

As already mentioned, almost all of the figures of men and women which Walter Shirlaw produced have one common characteristic—vigor. With few exceptions, his females have one or both arms raised, as will be noted in the illustrations included here. We wanted a photograph of his original design for the $10 silver certificate, which hangs in the Bureau (as do the original designs of the $1, $2 and $5 certificates of 1896), but age has taken its toll so that a clear picture of it is out of the question. We did notice that the engraver copied it faithfully except for discreet arranging of the drapes on "Agriculture" so that less of her torso is revealed.

CANADIAN 1947 DOT COIN?—Most numismatists agree that dots, die breaks and wearing of dies do not constitute varieties. A variety as we term it is a different die which in turn is used for a period of time. The duration may be for a number of years and at other times, many changes occur in a single issue. Combinations of obverse and reverse strikings may also fall into this category. Dots, maple leaves or any other type of marking cut into a die for a purpose form a true variety as well. We all know of the 1936 dot series and the many reasons for the missing cent and ten cent pieces of this issue. I will not try to discuss or solve that problem in this article.

The question that arises in my mind is the possibility of even another variety of 1947 coinage, that is the dot coins of this issue. The current catalogs list the five cents and quarter, and value them quite high in comparison with the plain and maple leaf varieties. Could the 1947 dot quarter be the 1947 maple leaf, with the maple leaf design in the die plugged to leave a tiny dot? Could the dot at the lower right corner of the seven on the five cent piece be a pitting of the die? I do not know.

Recently on checking my 1947 long point silver dollars, I came across some with a dot located to the right of the seven. It is clear and distinct, and in most cases, the coins are uncirculated. My search for similar cent, ten cent, and fifty cent pieces with dots on them have so far proven fruitless. Whether my find is a coincidence, or whether there is truly another variety of our much complicated 1947 issue, only time will tell. The long point dollar is quite scarce, and I do not have a quantity to make a comparative study. I would like to hear from other collectors who may be able to shed some light on the matter. Any information that can be compiled on the relative scarcity and whether or not 1947 dot cents and dimes do exist will be reported as soon as sufficient information is available.—BILL ENGLISH (Reprinted from the Ontario Numismatist)

Sale of Gold Coins in Austria — Ordinance No. 2/62 of the Austrian National Bank provides that foreign exchange dealers and dealers in coins are permitted to buy and sell in Austria, against payment in schillings, gold coins which are not valid as means of payment, including domestic 25-schilling and 100-schilling gold coins and all foreign gold coins which are no longer official means of payment. A private individual can now offer all gold coins for sale to jewelers and is no longer bound, as he has hitherto been for certain types of gold coin, to offer them to the Austrian Mint and the National Bank or their branch offices.—International Financial News Survey, June 15, 1962

A.N.A. - C.N.A. Combined Conventions

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

The 1962 Educational Program of the combined conventions of the American Numismatic Association and the Canadian Numismatic Association is scheduled for the evening of August 16, in Detroit's Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel. Each speaker is allotted twenty minutes, with a question-and-answer period at the close of the talks.

Glenn B. Smedley, Assistant to the Editor, The Numismatist, Oak Park, Ill., is Moderator. The speakers and their subjects are: Lt. Col. Jacques W. Ostiguy, Canadian Army Headquarters, Ottawa, Ont., "Three Great Military Orders of Early North America"; Mrs. H. G. Cole, Greenville, S. C., "Numismatists and the Secret Service"; Charles R. Hoskins, Detroit, Mich., "The U. S. A. Coinage Experiments of 1907"; David F. Spink, London, England, "New Facts About an Old U. S. Coin."

Lt. Col.
J. W. Ostiguy

Lt. Col. Jacques W. Ostiguy, a native of Montreal, is a staff officer with the Directorate of Military Training at Canadian Army Headquarters. Born in 1917, he was educated at Jean de Brebeuf Jesuit College in Montreal, the Royal Military College and Georgetown University at Washington, D. C. He served overseas five years during World War II and was a member of the Canadian Joint Staff in Washington, 1947-1950. His decorations include the Distinguished Service Order, Canadian Decoration with bar, Knight of Magistral Grace of the Sovereign and Military Order of Malta. Col. Ostiguy's interest in Numismatics developed from his study of military history and documents, and his specialty is the military history of the French Regime in Canada. He collects Crusader Orders, French Royal and Imperial Orders, and Russian Imperial Orders.

Mrs. H. Grady Cole, Jr. was born in Akron, Ohio, but at an early age moved to Atlanta, Ga., where she lived until her family moved to Greenville, S. C., at the end of 1961. She attended the University of Georgia, Atlanta Division, and the Atlanta Art Institute for two years. In addition to being active in church affairs and civic and community clubs, she now holds a position with WFBC Television Station in Greenville. Lois, as she prefers to be called, is a member of A.N.A. and several other numismatic organizations, and is a past officer of Atlanta Coin Club. She was one of the key members of the committee which produced the memorable Atlanta Convention last year. As one committee member said, "she put 'sparkle' into all of our meetings." Her family includes husband Grady, who is with Quaker State Oil Refining Corporation, and thirteen-year-old daughter Katherine.

Mrs. H. Grady
Cole, Jr.

Charles
Hoskins, III

Charles R. Hoskins, Assistant to the Director of the Money Museum of the National Bank of Detroit, became interested in coin collecting in 1949 and is now a member of ANA, ANS, and several other numismatic organizations. Hoskins was born in Athens, Ohio in 1936 and graduated from Culver Military Academy in 1954. In 1958 he received a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from Ohio University and later served as a commissioned officer in the Army. He was employed by WTVN-TV in Columbus, Ohio, and WTAP-TV in Parkersburg, W. Va., before joining the staff of the Money Museum early in 1961. Currently Hoskins is examining Mint records and locating the papers of designers of United States coins since 1900. The results will be contained in a monograph to be entitled "Twentieth Century U.S. Coins and Their Designers."

David Flinders Spink's second name derives from an ancestor, Capt. Matthews Flinders, R.N., who did exploration and navigational work in Australia, and actually gave Australia its present name. He joined the family firm nearly forty years ago and spent a few years in the antique silver department – his first love – and then transferred to the coin department. After serving in the Royal Air Force five years (over three were in the Far East) during the war, he spent most of his time in the medal department on both the collecting and manufacturing sides, the latter being concerned with making orders and medals for the British and many foreign and Commonwealth Governments. This and English coins remain his main interest, but a good deal of time goes to general supervision of the business as a whole, since his eldest brother died in 1958.

A.N.A.-C.N.A. 1962 CONVENTION

The A.N.A.-C.N.A. 1962 convention in Detroit promises many outstanding attractions, numismatically and socially. Here in the heart of dynamic Detroit can be seen some internationally famous numismatic exhibits. Outstanding will be those of Cardinal Spellman, The Bank of Canada, and the Ford Museum. The world's big name dealers will have bourse tables.

Earl Schill

Easy accessibility to most of Detroit's attractions, is the keynote to the convention. Canada is only minutes away. The Sheraton Cadillac is within walking distance of the new Civic Center, the Money Museum of the National Bank of Detroit, numerous shops and restaurants.

The above are just a few of the highlights. You will be pleased with the many planned activities waiting for convention visitors.

Be sure to come. Please call on me if there is anything I can do to assist in your convention plans.

— EARL SCHILL
General Chairman

The Farran Zerbe award for distinguished service will be presented to Lee F. Hewitt at the Detroit A.N.A. convention.

NOTES & QUERIES

Australia Plans New Mint and New Coins

According to newspaper reports, the Federal Government of Australia will build a new ten million dollar Mint, cease to use the Melbourne and Perth branches of the British Royal Mint, and change to a decimal coinage. While definite plans and scheduling of the changes have not been made yet, it is expected that the changeover will not be completed until about 1970.

The first step in constructing the modern new mint at Canberra which, according to Federal Treasurer Holt, will be completed in about two years and be equipped for all coinage operations except refining gold. Before the new Mint is ready for operation in 1964, a decision will be made on whether to continue the present coinage or adopt a decimal system. It appears most likely that, because of the time involved in adapting coin and accounting machines to the decimal system, the new mint will first produce current denominations but with some changes in size, composition and possibly design.

The present three penny, penny and half penny (ha'penny) coins are being produced at a loss, said Treasurer Holt. The new Mint probably will make a three penny coin of the same composition as the smaller denominations, i.e., 97% copper, 2.5% zinc and .5% tin, and appreciably larger than its present impractical size. The cumbersome penny will be reduced to about two-thirds its present size, and eventually the half penny will probably be discontinued. No decision has yet been made as to the design of the new size coins.

The Mint in Sydney was opened in 1855 and ceased operation in 1926, while the present operating Melbourne branch was opened in 1872 and the one at Perth in 1899. When the output of these branches of the Royal Mint could not meet demands, coins were obtained from London, India and the United States. — Clippings sent by C. Collier, Brisbane, Australia, from The Courier-Mail and the Telegraph.

Maurice M. Gould Represents Israel Numismatic Society

The Israel Numismatic Society announces that Maurice M. Gould has been appointed Honorary Secretary of the Society in America, and requests its members here to contact him in connection with Society activities. He will accept their annual dues of $5.00, as well as applications for membership from others. Members receive the quarterly Israel Numismatic Bulletin and enjoy a 25% reduction on the price of its other publications. Four volumes of Corpus Nummorum Palaestinorum have been issued and the fifth will be published about the end of the year. So far three books in the series Numismatic Studies and Researches have been published. Gould may be contacted at Box 141, Chestnut Hill 67, Mass.

First Anniversary of Banknote Society

Looking upon its unusually cosmopolitan membership and its good fortune in attracting leading students and collectors of all nations in the paper money field as two prime assets on its first anniversary, the International Banknote Society observes that its two hundred plus membership represents all six continents and twenty-three nations. Membership is concentrated primarily in North America and Europe, while Canada, the United States and South Africa are represented on the executive committee, the Society's quarterly is published in England, and contributors and correspondents are in South and Central America, Asia, Australia, and behind the Iron Curtain.

The current magazine announces a competition for selection of an I.B.S. emblem, open also to nonmembers. A prize of items in the paper money field is anticipated. Entries should be directed, before August 31, to the founding president, Walter M. Loeb, M.D., 4568 East Mercer Way, Mercer Island, Wash. Annual dues are $3, and questions relating to the Society may be addressed to Secretary George E. Broughton, 919 Chamberlain Court, New Haven, Ind., or (in Europe) to Editor C. C. Narbeth, "Mayfield," Kirby-road, Walton-on-Naze, Essex, England.

Antislavery Token Brings $525

A rare antislavery token dated 1838, of which only three or four are known to be extant, is reported to have brought $525 in the Warrensville Heights Coin Club auction conducted by Michael Kolman, Jr., of Federal Brand Enterprises in June. The half cent size token, which resembles Low 54 but was unknown to L. H. Low, depicts a Negro slave in chains and kneeling, with the words AM I NOT A MAN AND A BROTHER and the date on the obverse. On the reverse is a wreath with LIBERTY/1838 within and UNITED STATES OF AMERICA outside. This specimen was graded as very fine.

In an article entitled "Antislavery Tokens," in the April, 1957, issue of The Numismatist, authors Melvin and George Fuld illustrate and give the story of this token. It was issued during the period when the abolitionist movement was just catching fire in this country and, with its companion AM I NOT A WOMAN AND A SISTER token, was one of the means used to denounce slavery. Kolman believes that this is the first one of the rare pieces to be offered in a public auction.

Uncirculated Belgian Coins Are Available

Collectors interested in obtaining uncirculated Belgian coins should write the Banque Nationale de Belgique, Caisse Centrale, 5, Boulevard de Berlaimont, Brussels 1, Belgium. Many Americans are under the impression they should order these coins from the Hôtel des Monnaies (the Mint), from the Cabinet des Médailles or the Société de numismatique but none of these institutions sell coins.

[Editor's note: We are indebted to J. Lallemand, Librarian of the Bibliothèque Royale de Belgique, for the above information.]

United Numismatic Exhibitors Formed

The first act of the new United Numismatic Exhibitors (UNE) was to apply for membership in the A.N.A. Its reported purpose is to get collectors to exhibit their collections, to show collectors how to display and house their coins, paper money and other items properly. The organization was formed June 10 by Art Lovi, Irving Moskowitz and nineteen other exhibitors.

"All numismatists are invited to join," said Art Lovi. "There are no fees, dues or other charges. All we ask is that you are a member of the A.N.A." For added information, write Art Lovi, 307 S. Palafox St. Pensacola, Fla.

Empire State's Convention

The days of September 21, 22 and 23 promise to be busy ones in Utica, N. Y., as the Mohawk Valley Coin Club entertains the twenty-fifth semi-annual convention of the Empire State Numismatic Association. The locale is the Hotel Utica, convenient to auto, bus, rail and air routes. Herkimer's Sheldon Coin Shop is handling the auction. There will be exhibits and bourse, with plenty of awards and other prizes. For information get in touch with General Chairman William P. Donlon, ESNA Headquarters, Suite 303-304, Hotel Utica, Utica, N. Y.

L. to R., George T. Lunsford, President of the Blue Ridge Numismatic Association; John W. Teepell, Convention Treasurer; Roy T. Payne, General Chairman; and Grady C. Sizemore, Secretary of BRNA.

Blue Ridge Numismatic Association Convention

The Blue Ridge Numismatic Association's third annual convention, with Atlanta Coin Club as host, will be held August 23 through 26 at the Atlanta Biltmore Hotel in Atlanta, Ga. Over thirty southern and eastern clubs are members of the Association.

The convention site is the same enjoyed by those who attended the A.N.A. convention last year in Atlanta, and reservations have been made by many to return to Atlanta for this area convention. Roy T. Payne, General Chairman, advises making hotel reservations immediately.

With ninety spacious bourse tables in the hotel's Exhibition Hall, outstanding displays in the Georgian Ballroom, choice material at auction sessions, the convention includes many entertainment plans for the whole family—bus trips to local points of interest, hospitality rooms, a tea and shopping tour for the ladies, and a buffet banquet to wind up the four-day activities.

Many of the country's finest displays will be exhibited and will compete for prize awards in all categories. For display information, write P. S. Reed, 61 - 16th Street, N.E., Atlanta 9, Georgia.

Obsolete Note Brings $1,200 at P.Q.N.A. Convention

Four hundred and fifty registered guests and twelve hundred visitors can attest to the success of the first annual convention of the Province of Quebec Numismatic Association. Held Newfoundland gold coins. Honorable mention exhibits were by Charles Ricard, Jack Lupovich and Joseph Guindon. Noncompetitive displays included numismatic and historical rarities by the Bank of Montreal; a collection of Canadian decimal coins by John J. Pittman; rare Canadian tokens and odd and curious monies by J. Douglas Ferguson; badges and emblems by William Scully, Ltd.

Forty-five bourse dealers did a brisk business in gold and "key" coins, a 1921 Canadian half dollar in V.G. reportedly being sold for $2,400. Highlighting the auction conducted by J. E. Charlton was the sale of a Molsons Bank $6 note of 1871 for $1,200.

Following an excellent banquet, guest speaker Maurice M. Gould related his many experiences, some humorous, in forty years of collecting Canadian coins. He predicted a bright future for Canadian numismatics.

President Robert J. Verity and Vice President Saul Hendler conducted the business meeting of the Association at which a constitution was presented and accepted. Officers elected for two-year terms are: President Eddy Echenberg, Vice President J. J. Prenoveau, Secretary Chris Faulkner, and Treasurer Stanley J. Rychel. The office of Honorary President was accepted by J. Douglas Ferguson. Fred Bowman was made Honorary Vice President. The Association des Numismates de Montreal was awarded the 1963 convention.

The distinctive medals struck to commemorate the convention are available to collectors at $3.00 in bronze and $7.00 in sterling. The pair may be had in an imprinted plastic case at $12.00. Orders, with remittance, should be sent to Robert J. Verity, President of Montreal Coin Club, 3380 Ridgewood Ave., Montreal 26, Quebec, Canada. — STANLEY J. RYCHEL, Publicity Chairman

The Reagan Foundation

Dear Mr. Bradfield:

Nothing has so shocked the numismatic world in the past decade as the untimely death of Lewis M. Reagan. Here was a man who lived several distinct lives, one of these being zealously devoted to the science of numismatics.

It was our privilege to know the man. In the past we met on numerous occasions at numismatic conventions. We always sought him out. He most often found the time to slip out and away from the big goings-on, and seek out a quiet nook where we could talk and gain some amount of good through our understandings. The end of these friendly chats will leave a void in this individual's life. Too, all numismatists will sense the absence of this man's touch on all phases of numismatics.

The Lewis M. Reagan Memorial Foundation and its goal must go forward to completion. It has been organized to perpetuate the memory of the late A.N.A. General Secretary. A. I. Martin, of Houston, President of the Texas Numismatic Association, heartily endorses this memorial project and urges all Texas members as well as all numismatists, to participate to the fullest extent. Texas must simply be felt in this matter.

CARL WURTZBACH

Twelfth President, 1917 to 1919

By

JACK W. OGILVIE, LM 93, HISTORIAN

It was an odd coincidence that our twelfth President's tenure in office was during the exact period that his adopted country and his native country were at war with each other. Carl Wurtzbach was born in Harzerode, Germany on May 3, 1864 and came to the United States when he was three years old. His early life was spent in Curtisville, Mass., a town named after the family of his wife, Lizzie Isabelle Curtis, whom he married in 1887. The Curtis family were New England pioneers and she was a grand niece of Mark Hopkins. After their marriage, they removed to Lee, Mass., where they resided the rest of their lives. He was associated with the Western Massachusetts Electric Co., and President of the Lee National Bank as well as the Library Association.

Carl Wurtzbach

Carl had a deep interest in all things pertaining to the history of his adopted country, especially its early coinage. He started collecting Colonial pieces and early U.S. cents when a boy and attended his first coin sale in 1885. Here he met Henry C. Hines and they became fast friends, although rivals in their quest for rarities in their favorite branch of numismatics, U. S. large cents. Every important sale for the next sixty years was attended by one or both of these gentlemen. Together, with Howard Newcomb and George Clapp, they were known as the "Big Four of Big Cents." Wurtzbach also retained his interest in Colonials and in 1913 published a brochure on Massachusetts Colonial silver coins which became the standard reference on the subject. He wrote a few other articles, mostly on the subjects of Colonials and Hard Time Tokens, which were published in The Numismatist on occasions.

Wurtzbach was one of the earliest members of the A.N.A., joining in January, 1894. He was assigned No. 65 in the reorganization period, and became Life Member 26 in 1928. He began his official career by serving on the Board from 1913 to 1915 and was Chairman from 1916 until elected twelfth President in 1917. A complete new Board composed of T. E. Leon, Fred B. King, Elmer S. Sears and Moritz Wormser, was named and Waldo C. Moore became its Chairman. Dr. George P. French was elected First Vice President.

These competent officers knew full well that top priority went to the war effort and that the younger numismatists were more concerned with the date of their draft call than they were the date of a coin, so the group contented themselves with the routine tasks of their official duties. About the only other tidings, numismatically, were the several variety changes in our money of the year 1917. [It takes thirty-three items to complete the series and the different varieties bearing this date, according to Life Member (Mrs.) Thelma Case. She has them all — it's her birth year. First, the mintmarks on the San Francisco and Denver half dollars were changed from the obverse to the reverse. Then the controversy arose over the Liberty Standing quarter. Complaints were made that, due to the position of the eagle on the reverse, they would not stack well, and women complained that Miss Liberty, on the obverse, was too well stacked and exposed. So, the eagle was raised and also the gal's neckline, giving her what was described as a "corsage of mail." This made everybody happy, and added three more varieties. Mrs. Case included, in her varieties, the overdated 1918/17 5¢ and 25¢ as well as a bill with a transposed signature.]

Starting in the June, 1917 Numismatist, "Paper Money of the Confederate States" by H. D. Allen ran serially until February, 1919. It was profusely illustrated, most informative and contained several important discoveries. Some judicious cutting of redundant biographies would have shortened the space that Editor Duffield gave to the series. It never became a standard work, although many of the illustrations and a condensation of the text may be found in more recent treatments. The oldest living numismatist of that time collected these Confederate notes as well as Colonials, stamps and almanacs. He was Dr. Jesse C. Green of Westchester, Pa. His birth date was December 13, 1817 and he died July 26, 1920.

The 1918 Philadelphia convention was postponed from late September to early October and quite an elaborate program was planned. Suddenly, because of the flu epidemic, it was cancelled and on December 11, twenty-one officers and A.N.A. members held a business meeting in Springfield, Mass. President Wurtzbach revealed to the small group that the Association, despite all hazards, had gained a few members the past year and that there were still over three hundred nonmember subscribers to The Numismatist. A tabulation of the ballots showed that all incumbents had been reelected. This meeting was not considered a convention, so it was voted that no badges or bars were to be distributed.

On July 8, 1919, the U. S. Secret Service seized a quantity of Confederate States notes from an unnamed A.N.A. member, along with some broken bank bills and Mexican currency. Similar cases, previously and afterward, were also reported. Once again, the illegal seizure hassle was on! An explanation from the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury to Hon. William A. Ashbrook stated that "it was done to suppress the indiscriminate sale by curio dealers because this class of currency has been used, more or less extensively to defraud." He then referred to a lengthy finding of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals (Page 346-351, Sept. 1919 Numismatist.) Perhaps one reason behind this action was the rumor that some unscrupulous doughboys, with a quantity of these notes, as well as the tiny gold filled "charms" mentioned below, had passed them to unsuspecting merchants in foreign lands as genuine U. S. money.

While the A.N.A. sided with its member regarding the confiscation of the notes, it unanimously approved the action of the Government in seizing a quantity of the "charms" in Chicago at about this same time. These were imitations of the round and octangular quarter, half and dollar denominations of the so-called genuine California gold pieces supposedly issued several years after gold was discovered in 1849. Manufactured on occasions for years, they were a source of annoyance to collectors and dealers at that time and continue to be up to the present. Farran Zerbe tried to explain these "charms" in an article in the August 1919 Numismatist. This writer gets dozens of inquiries a year from new collectors who think they have a rare gold piece. Lee Hewitt gives the best explanation so far advanced on the subject on page 1468 of the June 1961 Scrapbook. The Guidebook gives a concise definition of the so-called genuine pieces under the heading "California Small Denomination Gold Pieces" with proper illustrations.

It was agreed when the 1918 Philadelphia convention was cancelled, that the next would be held in that city. The 1919 affair convened at the Academy of Fine Arts on October 4, and ran for five days. Seventy-three members registered, although it was said that as many as eight hundred guests per day visited the exhibits. While not an official part of the program, Henry Chapman conducted a coin sale at his home on the first evening of the meeting which was well attended by early arrivals. This was, perhaps, the forerunner of the present gigantic auctions held currently. Visitations included historic Valley Forge and, quite naturally, the United States Mint. The Chapmans, aided by their charming wives, gave two receptions. Mrs. Henderson entertained at the Henry Chapmans and the feature at the S. H. Chapmans was illustrated slides of a trip to Morocco, with commentary. In the election of officers, Waldo C. Moore became thirteenth President.

The Wurtzbach administration ended with about the same number of active members as when it began. New applicants erased the loss caused by those dropping out. A rather heavy necrology included the names of ex-President Hooper, S. C. Stevens, P. N. Breton, Dr. A. L. Fisher, Daniel Howorth, Wm. Poillon, George W. Rice and John W. Scott. All of this group were connected with the Association or numismatics in a historical way. Prominent numismatists who enrolled in this period were: long time members, Otto Kersteiner, Benjamin Porter, John H. Snow, W. H. Thomas and Wm. A. Gaede; H. A. Sternberg, U. S. cent authority and later a Board member; O. P. Eklund who attributed foreign copper coins, and Alden S. Boyer, who became eighteenth President. Present day members are: Howard Gibbs, who writes about odd and curious money of the world; Norman Shultz, the Salt Lake City dealer; George W. Wardner; Dr. Alex M. Rackus who has a flair for money of the world and Wm. A. Philpott, that Texas banker who knows all about paper money — both ways.

Ex-President Wurtzbach stepped out of the official family by his own request. He attended conventions until 1935 and retained an avid interest in his collection for several years thereafter. He eventually sold his famous large cent collection to T. James Clarke and it was resold by A. Kosoff in 1956. The magnificent Colonial series went to a number of collectors, while his Massachusetts silver coins were sold to F. C. C. Boyd. In his eighty-third year and after a brief illness, he passed away on August 30, 1947.

A BRENNER MEDAL

The medal pictured here was designed by Victor D. Brenner and is owned by Samuel R. Green, Morton, Pa. Fewer than six copies were struck, according to Medallie Art Co. RARE CORDWOOD TOKENS REPORTED

The publication of the short article, "Tokens of Our Pioneer Railroads, The Wood Burners" in the December, 1961, issue of The Numismatist, page 1653, has resulted in reports of new and before unknown cordwood tokens by readers of The Numismatist. Please add to the tentative listing of cordwood tokens on page 1657 the following:

2A. Obv. M. S. & N. I. R. R. (Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad) as on No. 2 except the "M" is at eight o'clock and the final "R" is at four o'clock.

Rev. $\frac{1}{4}$ CORD with a large 22 incused directly below. (This is a new variety of the Western Division and there are now three W. D. tokens known, not one as originally stated.)

11. Counterstamped on the obverse of a U. S. large cent dated 1848 in one line P. S. & P. R. R. CO. (The reason for and the use of this counterstamped large cent is unknown but it serves to help us remember the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth Railroad, a short line between Portland, Maine and Portsmouth, N. H., which was in operation during the time the wood burners were in use.)

12. Obv. Incused in one line Q. M. O. & O. RY.

Rev. Incused in three lines ENGINE 22 / $\frac{1}{2}$ / CORD. The 22 is obliterated by a large punch and 11 is stamped below it. Brass, size about 28 mm., holed. (This token was used on the Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa and Occidental Railroad which operated in Canada from 1875 to 1882 and now is a part of the Canadian Pacific Railroad System.)

J. D. Ferguson, Rock Island, Quebec reports a G. W. R. token like No. 7, which is holed, with Engine No. 168 similar to the one owned by James J. Curto, Grosse Pointe, Mich. Ferguson says that the Great Western Railroad of Canada had its head office in Hamilton, Ont., in 1852. This would indicate that these tokens were used in Canada, not by the Great Western Railway, in the United States. He also has two C. P. R. and one G. T. R. tokens that may or may not be of the woodburning types. One has all the appearance of it including the numbering but on its back is stamped the word ABSENT which would seem to indicate that it was used to record attendance of the train crew.

Hiram A. Callahan, Jackson, Ohio reports having a copper token the size of a 25¢ piece with No. 3 at the top and across the center, C. & O. R. R. and at the bottom $\frac{1}{4}$ with the reverse blank. This token would seem to be for the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, however since in my copy of the American Railroad guide for 1851 the C. & O. is listed as a canal company and since the token does not have the word CORD it would appear that it was not used on a woodburning locomotive but for some other purpose.

The writer wishes to thank the readers of The Numismatist for expressing interest in the article. He also wishes to thank the following: W. N. Garret, J. M. Coffee, Jr., J. W. Astwood, W. L. Braunsdorf, A. Hoch, J. D. Ferguson and H. Callahan, who sent in information on new variety tokens. — CLYDE J. DREWING, A.N.A. No. 15331

ALMOST THE DEADLINE

There are still a few days left for your article on some phase of numismatics for possible publication in The Numismatist and subsequent consideration by the Heath Literary Award Committee. Though the deadline for this year's campaign is now approaching (August 15), please write that paper on your favorite subject and submit it to the Editor of The Numismatist.

Many thanks to those who have submitted manuscripts and to the members of the Papers Committee for their help.

— ROBERT T. FERRIS, Chm.

A.N.A. Papers Committee

A new campaign medal for GIs who served in various "cold war" theaters has been issued. Called the armed forces expeditionary medal, it will be given for specified service in Berlin, Lebanon, Quemoy and Matsu, Formosa Straits, the Congo, Laos and South Vietnam.

A.N.A. - C.N.A. Convention Medal Available

The official medal commemorating the first joint convention of the American and Canadian Numismatic Associations is being struck by the Medallic Art Company in New York City and will be delivered to the Detroit Convention Committee before August 15.

Marshall Fredericks, internationally known Detroit sculptor, was selected to prepare the models for the medal because of his merit as an artist and his intimate association with Detroit. To create an attractive and symbolic motif on the obverse, Fredericks combined the American Eagle and the Canadian Maple Leaf, portraying the long time friendship between the two nations. The monumental bronze figure, "Spirit of Detroit," which stands in front of the City-County Building near the convention hotel, is shown on the reverse. Sculptor Fredericks completed the statue in 1958.

The medal is being struck in limited quantities in sterling silver and in bronze, both 1 1/2 inches in diameter. All medals will be serially numbered and boxed with a descriptive folder. The bronze medal will be incorporated in the convention badge to be given to all registrants, but it will be unnumbered and unsuitable for display due to being attached to the badge.

Orders for the bronze and silver medals are now being accepted by the Medal Chairman. They will be offered for sale at the convention, but since serial numbers will be awarded on a first come, first served basis, and since the supply remaining for sale at the convention may be limited, those wanting the medals are advised to place their orders immediately.

Silver medals are $9.00 and bronze medals at $2.50. Michigan residents add 4% state sales tax, and Canadians remit in U.S. funds. Orders for medals should be sent with check or money order payable to American Numismatic Association to Charles Hoskins, Medals Chairman, 3675 Devonshire, Detroit 24, Mich.

BOOK REVIEWS

A Guide Book of United States Coins, Sixteenth Edition*, by R. S. Yeoman, Whitman Publishing Company, Racine, Wis., board covers, 256 pp., $1.75.

"How is it priced in the new Red Book?" is an all important question which can be answered now, because the sixteenth edition was distributed throughout the country and to many other countries in late June. We find many changes in prices and many improvements in arrangement and illustrations in this edition, bringing it up to date and making it easier to use.

The most noticeable improvements seem to be more conditions priced, a brief guide to grading each major type with its illustration, quantity minted with the price listing rather than in a tabulation at the end of the book, and alphabetic arrangement of commemoratives. As expected, many prices are higher, but we note that recent coins marked "speculative" in the last edition have changed very little — a few are priced lower. Most early type coins have advanced appreciably, the 1796 quarter being almost doubled from a year ago. Proof coins show modest increases but not to the extent of some previous editions. Probably the popular series that advanced most is the commemorative, both silver and gold.

Always a best seller, we predict that this improved edition will outsell any previous one because Whitman has spent money and effort to give the purchaser more value for the same price. — GLENN S.

The Coinage of South Germany in the Thirteenth Century* by D. M. Metcalf, Spink and Son, Ltd., 1961, London, England, paper covers, 79 pages, illus., 21 shillings.

This book, a compilation of papers previously published in serial form in the Numismatic Circular, illustrates and discusses in detail the Thirteenth Century coinages of the area of the old medieval Holy Roman Empire now generally covered by the modern nations of Switzerland, Austria, and the German states of Bavaria and Baden-Wurtemberg. The author carefully approaches his subject laying proper ground work for each area covered in the text. All important geographical areas are illustrated with maps, showing mint cities, areas of distribution, etc. All major coin types are illustrated by line drawings which, considering the usual miserable condition of these coins, are superior to photographs. The documentation is good. The approach is such that there is much of value for the advanced collector in the text but it is easily understood by the beginner. This is probably the finest work of its kind now in print in English and a must purchase for any collector even remotely interested in medieval coinages of South Germany. It is to be hoped that Mr. Metcalf will extend his fine work to other areas of the medieval German state. — JOHN F. LHOTKA, JR., M. D.

A History of the Dollar* by Arthur Nussbaum, Columbia University Press, 1957, New York City, board covers, 308 pages, $4.50.

Although not a numismatic text, this volume by Dr. Nussbaum, retired Research Professor of Public Law at Columbia University, can be of great help to the collector of U. S. coinages by giving him in one volume a complete history of the American monetary system and providing fundamental economic background of our coins and currency. Dr. Nussbaum takes the reader through the maze of colonial fiscal policies, through the shaky monetary activities of the infant republic, through the trying days of the Bank of the United States and the conflict with President Andrew Jackson, the rise of paper currency and the "wildcat notes," the Civil War and its inflationary influences, the Reconstruction era, the great gold standard-silver standard controversy, the rise of the Federal Reserve system and the reorganization of state banks, the period of World War I, the New Deal and its occasionally unusual fiscal policies, and finally the period of the second war and the status of the dollar in the postwar period. The later Truman and Eisenhower administrations are not considered to any extent.

His discussions on the development of paper money systems (with their many pitfalls), the long bitter gold-silver struggles (still not really resolved), and the financial manipulations present throughout our entire economic history are fascinating and entertainingly presented. For the most part, Dr. Nussbaum has refrained from injecting personal attitudes in his text and his frequent numismatic comments are generally accurate. The book is recommended for anyone wishing an easy background course in American fiscal policies. — JOHN F. LHOTKA, JR., M. D.

Introduction a la Numismatique Byzantine* by Henry Longuet, Spink and Son, Ltd., 1961, London, England, board covers, 158 pages, illus., 70 shillings.

This is the latest primary text on the Byzantine series to appear and, although the book is in French, it has a great deal of value to the American collector who has even the slightest knowledge of the language. Dr. Longuet has written it in clear and relatively forward style and it can actually be read without too great difficulty by one without knowledge of French if aided by a dictionary. The elaborate literary styles so often encountered in works by French authors is missing.

The book differs from others of its type in that it is essentially an illustrated discussion of the series rather than lists of coins such as found in Goodacre. The contents are relatively comprehensive although not excessively detailed. Each facet of Byzantine coinage is considered in turn including the mints, the denominations, the types and inscriptions (very well presented) and imitatives. In this last category, Dr. Longuet includes Slavic imitatives of the later coinage as well as the usually considered imitatives of the barbarian West and the Moslems.

Twenty-four plates of clear photographs illustrating 334 coins as well as a few examples of related Byzantine art works accompany the text. The photographs alone are well worth the cost of the book. It is unfortunate for the average American reader that the text is not in English since much well presented fundamental information is present and the language difference may preclude their approaching this interesting work. — JOHN F. LHOTKA, JR., M. D.

European Crowns, 1700-1800* by Dr. John S. Davenport, 1961, 334 pp., illus., published by the author, care of Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., $10.00.

From time to time I have to check my sense of perspective. Looking back over the past ten or fifteen decades I can readily convince myself that the great reference works and the most important numismatic research have long been done. The names that come to mind are mostly Nineteenth Century names: Neumann, Poey d'Avant, Cohen, Schultess-Rechberg, Crosby, Atkins, Lane-Poole, Hutten-Czapski, Resch, and all the rest.

But perspective can be deceiving. From a distance, the panorama of a century's numismatic production can be encompassed in one great sweep, and everywhere in it you see these great Victorian landmarks. Compared to this, our own present time, ticking it off year by year as we live it, may at first glance seem sparse in its numismatic product.

Such a comparison, of course, is hardly fair. You have only to look at the file of the American Numismatic Society's periodical, Numismatic Literature, for the 1950s to realize how rich and varied a period of numismatic publication we live in. Indeed, I think one could sustain the argument that there has never been so active and productive a time of numismatic scholarship as our own good comfortable present.

In addition, without compromising quality, latter day numismatic writers and publicists pay more attention to ease and attractiveness of presentation. It takes a sure footed man indeed to weave his way competently through Madai or Neumann.

All this is by way of circumlocuting into the subject at hand, viz: Professor John Davenport's newest catalog of crowns. In many ways it is the best yet. So far as I can think, none of the earlier standard works has given a complete presentation of Eighteenth Century European crowns. And certainly there has been none to compare with the present work in richness of illustration. And I for one treasure Professor Davenport's historical vignettes. Sometimes they are admirably pithy; how could a biographer do better on Louis XIV than "His reign opened with much promise, lapsed into magnificence, and ended at his death with the curses of an exhausted and disillusioned people?"

The catalog itself is presented with such ease and grace that the undertaking may seem effortless to the casual reader. If it does, this is a compliment to the author. I'd guess that the research, arranging, providing for illustrations, and verifying that went into this major element of Professor Davenport's grand design must in the aggregate have cost him a good five or ten times the application and concentration that were required for his earlier catalog of Nineteenth Century crowns.

How to arrange in some orderly manner the dozens of money issuing authorities of Eighteenth Century Europe is a problem that JSD has solved at least as logically and certainly more simply than the classical European approach of Emperors, Kings, Ecclesiastical Rulers, Old and New Princely Houses, etc. He follows a general alphabetical order, but groups after the Habsburg Emperors all their appanages and keeps together under Italy, Switzerland and the United Netherlands the numerous lesser and separate subdivisions of those regions.

In addition to the basic catalog of almost nine hundred crowns and multiples (all but ten of them illustrated), there are three appendices and a bibliography. Appendix A associates some hundreds of legends, many of them cryptic in themselves, with the catalog number of the coin on which they are found. This makes attribution a sure-fire proposition. The appendix does not include Russian legends in Cyrillic letters, but attribution of rubles presents no special problem.

Appendix B lists initials of Mintmasters, Engravers, etc.; and Appendix C recognizes as pseudo-crowns a number of pieces that often creep into crown collections. The bibliography is a no-nonsense affair, containing reasonably enough to carry the student a fair way down any specialized path he might be inclined to follow.

The usual separate valuations sheet is included, with values estimated for January 1, 1961. Any one in touch with the market will find flaws to pick. But the price sheet has great utility as a generally dependable guide to comparative (not absolute) values.

There is much detail one can thank JSD for in the individual listings and under the country headings. I had not known the origin of the Russian term for taler, Yefimok. It comes from the Russian version of Joachim (as in Joachimsthaler)! The treatment of Turkish dollar size pieces opens up a terra heretofore incognito to most of us. The somewhat prolix, if not difficult, series of the Netherlands is admirably sorted out, as are the Venetians.

There are points one can argue with the author: Whether, for example, he should not have shown both St. Petersburg and Moscow as Mints for rubles of the infant Tsar Ivan III if he did as much for the Empress Elizabeth who succeeded him. But this leads to the question of how detailed and relatively specialized a general catalog should become. No answer suits everyone; but I should think JSD's judgments pretty uniformly and admirably serve the purposes of the overwhelming majority of serious general collectors.

Everyone now uses this catalog as the standard work, just as we all have done with its predecessors. More and more we come to take the author and his capability for granted.

How long now, O Davenport, before you guide us safely and surely through Seventeenth Century European crowns? — RANDOLPH ZANDER Merchant Counterstamps on American Silver Coins by Maurice M. Gould, Ovalon Publishing Co., Wayland, Mass., 1962, illus., 16 pp.

I have just completed a most pleasant assignment, that of reading this work by a recognized authority on counterstamps. This is the first attempt to list the various counterstamps and countermarks on United States and Spanish American silver coins by merchants and others. No other book on American coins has ever adequately covered the topic.

The author did not make the usual mistake in first works of this kind of pricing each item, except for a general price guide in the booklet's introduction. Counterstamped American coins are so rare they seldom come on the market.

If you are interested in American coinages, you cannot afford to be without Maurice Gould's new reference. I strongly recommend its acquisition.

Taiwan 100 Dollar Notes to Be Exchanged

By

DWIGHT L. MUSSER

A new type of NT$100 denomination bank note was placed in circulation in Taiwan on June 11, 1962 by the Bank of Taiwan. The announcement was made by P. Y. Hsu, Governor of the Central Bank of China, in a press conference June 10. The official reason given for the new issue was that the NT$100 notes presently in circulation were not holding up well due to their being printed on inferior quality paper. The new notes are said to be of a better grade, longer lasting paper.

The old type NT$100 notes were placed in circulation approximately a year ago. Although not mentioned in official announcements, and not generally known to collectors, there are two varieties of the former NT$100 paper money. Both are printed in the vertical format and have the date 1949 on the reverse, but there is a slight difference in color and a pronounced difference in the ornamental design on the lower portion of the obverse. The reason for the two varieties is shrouded in official mystery, however there is a hint of some intra-governmental wrangling over which type was most suitable. It seems that one type was not supposed to have been released at all, but did get into circulation. At any rate, all are to be exchanged within three months and destroyed.

One source suggested that the old notes were printed in 1949 and were thus some twelve years old when first released in June, 1961, which might explain their short circulation life. Another unofficial explanation was that they were too easy to counterfeit.

New issue of NT$100 notes

Two varieties of the former NT$100

It is estimated that a total of more than NT$190,000,000 of the old type notes are in circulation. The new issue will not exceed NT$220,000,000. One provision of the exchange procedure is that only notes of NT$100 denomination can be exchanged for the new issue.

The new NT$100 note is printed in a horizontal format which conforms to the "new series" design NT$1 and NT$50 which were placed in circulation in 1961. In fact, all three notes are dated the Fiftieth Year of the Chinese Republic and may intentionally have a commemorative significance in addition to meeting a practical need for currency.

The Bank of Taiwan is the designated bank of issue for the Central Bank of China which was reactivated on July 1, 1961 after having been dormant in many of its functions since the end of 1949.

The three notes of the "new series" feature a portrait of Dr. Sun Yat-sen on the left obverse and the Presidential office on the reverse. No English wording appears on the notes, although Arabic numerals are employed on the reverse to denote the denominations. The predominant colors of the three notes are: NT$1, green; NT$50, purple, NT$100, olive-green. While issued in graduated sizes, the NT$100 is only slightly larger than the NT$50.

SURVEY OF MEDIEVAL IBERIAN COINAGES

II — Aragon

By

P. K. ANDERSON, LM 210 AND J. F. LHOTKA, LM 334

Coins of John II of Aragon (1458-1479)

John II (1458-1479) had been acting as King of Navarre for his son, Charles of Viana, since 1441 at the request of Charles' mother, Blanca of Navarre, who was John's first wife. Blanca was the daughter of Charles (the Noble) and was heir to the throne of Navarre. She died April 1, 1441 when Charles was twenty years old but stipulated in her will that John continue to reign as King of Navarre. Charles consented to this action but, when John became King of Aragon, the partisans of Charles demanded that Charles be made King of Navarre. John refused and civil war broke out and continued until the forces of Charles had almost obtained the upper hand. John then agreed to the demands of Charles but before the agreement could be carried out Charles died presumably as the result of poisoning instigated by his stepmother. This left the Catalonians at a disadvantage as they had no other legitimate candidate. They first offered the throne to Louis XI of France who declined, then to Henry IV of Castile who accepted but only lasted a trifle over a year (1462-1463). Henry struck silver croats for Barcelona as Pretender.

Medallion of John II

Next candidate was Don Pedro, Constable of Portugal, a grandson of the Count of Urgel. Pedro took possession January 21, 1464 and died in Barcelona, also under suspicious circumstances, on June 29, 1466. Pedro struck gold escudos and one-half escudos. After his death Renato (the Good) was chosen but, seventy years old and blind, he sent his son who entered Barcelona on August 31, 1467 and was invested King in his father's name. Gold escudos and quarter escudos were issued in the name of Renato. On December 16, 1470 Barcelona fell to the troops of John II and the Catalonians surrendered, accepting him as King after a war that had lasted twelve years. John died January 19, 1479 leaving as successor a son by his second wife, Ferdinand II (1479-1516) who had married Isabella, Queen of Castile and Leon ten years previously. Under their joint rule Spain became a united nation and passed from its medieval period into modern history.

KOREAN MONETARY REFORM

At midnight on June 9, 1962, Korea's Supreme Council for National Reconstruction promulgated the Emergency Currency Law, with effect from June 10. Hwan notes and coins were revalued at the rate of ten hwan to one won, the new currency unit, and the official exchange rate was adjusted from one thousand three hundred hwan per U. S. dollar to one hundred thirty won per U. S. dollar. All hwan notes and coins ceased to be legal tender, except for denominations of less than fifty hwan, which were to continue to be legal tender until July 10, but at one tenth of their former face value. This is the second such reform since the end of World War II, the first having been in February, 1953, when the previous won currency was revalued at the rate of one hundred won to one hwan, and the official exchange rate was correspondingly changed from six thousand won per U. S. dollar to sixty hwan per U. S. dollar.

The law required all individuals, corporations, and other organizations holding hwan currency and other means of domestic payment issued prior to June 10 to report the total amount and the forms of all means of payment in their possession to the appropriate Dong Office (the lowest branch of local government administration). The Dong officials were authorized to certify the information thus reported on a bank deposit form during June 10-12. The currency and other means of payment thus reported had to be presented to the nearest banking institution by June 17. The banks were authorized to pay out a maximum of five hundred won (new currency) for living costs per person for the period June 10-17; if the total holdings of any household exceeded the amount permitted to be drawn, the remainder was required to be deposited in the bank under the old currency account. An additional amount of up to five thousand won could be drawn during June 10-17 for medical, funeral, and wedding expenses. Apart from this, the withdrawal of deposits from banking institutions was suspended from June 10-17.

UN officials, foreign armed forces, and diplomatic missions were permitted to draw the new currency without limit. Nonresident travelers were authorized to draw won within the amount of foreign currency registered at the port of entry.

Club News

Despite the downpour which flooded areas of downtown St. Louis on June 11, ninety-seven members attended the 249th meeting of Missouri Numismatic Society at Hotel Claridge and elected the following officers for 1962/63: President Charles Page, Vice President (Mrs.) Caroline Boehme, Secretary (Mrs.) Bernice Stevenson, and Treasurer John Stevenson — the Stevensons beginning their third terms. Retiring President Edward Boehme, Sr. assumes the office of Chairman of the Board, with Tom Elder, Christian Schlather and Al Wick being the elected governors. Bill Zimmerman graciously invited members of the Society to an expense free picnic at Fun Fare Amusement Park, Chain of Rocks Bridge, on August 19. A moment of silent tribute was paid to the memory of our longtime member Otto F. Lefler who died on June 3. Among the NCW displays was the one which won first prize for the Secretary at last year's annual show at the Statler Hotel. It was shown for three weeks in a spacious glass cabinet in the new St. Louis County Library and attracted much attention. Included in it were the famed Mexican Aztec Calendar Twenty Pesos, the historically important pillar dollar and other interesting Mexican pieces. The display was made attractive with colored posters and photos of old Mexico. The hobby was promoted by copies of The Numismatist and other publications for collectors. It also announced the ANA-CNA convention in Detroit August 15-18, and the MNS third annual Coin Festival at Hotel Statler in St. Louis August 11-12. The Society will resume its monthly meetings in September after holding informal get-togethers during the summer. — MRS. BERNICE STEVENSON, Sec.

Members of Western Pennsylvania Numismatic Society, meeting in the Carnegie Museum Library on May 1, enjoyed a talk by Ray Byrne on "Coinage in the West Indies and Caribbean Islands." Ray pointed out that, in early days, the islands depended on trade with the outside world and that most of their currency was carried away as payment for goods received. To assure that coins would be left in the islands or returned to them, the idea of counterstamping them was born. Besides Byrne's exhibit of cut and counterstamped coins and gold coins of South America, there were varied and interesting exhibits by H. C. Bartley, Fred Dodge, Gordon Dodrill, Richard Foley, Robert S. Porter, Jr., J. O. Sloss and William Woodside.

At the June 5 meeting, the following officers were reelected for the coming year: President Richard T. Foley, Vice President Ray Byrne, Secretary-Treasurer Robert J. Hudson, M.D., and Curator Jack Burns. — DR. R. J. HUDSON, Sec.-Treas.

The organizational meeting of Echo Park Coin Club was held May 22 at 4674 Hollywood Blvd. in Los Angeles. The following were elected: President George D'Amato; Vice President Jack C. Mackay; Secretary Marguerite Price; Treasurer Bob Null; and Governors Nick Engro, Roger Parient and Ed Thorne. Meetings are tentatively scheduled for the third Thursday monthly at the Lions Club, 1004 Echo Park Ave. Inquiries may be addressed to the Vice President at 2034 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles 26, Cal. — JACK C. MACKAY, Corr. Sec.

A.N.A. Vice President P. K. Anderson greeted thirty members and guests of North Central Kansas Coin Club at its June 6 meeting. Anderson spoke on "Emergency Money," referring especially to the coinage of the West Indies and exhibiting numerous pieces from his collection which is said to be one of the best in the Western Hemisphere. In appreciation of his signal service to numismatics, the Club voted a life membership to the honored guest. We were pleased that when he asked how many belonged to A.N.A., about half of our members responded. — JOHN J. SMIES, Sec.-Treas.

Over eighty persons attended the May 19 installation dinner of Crescent City Coin Club at the Court of Two Sisters in the Vieux Carre in New Orleans. Dr. Carlo P. Cabibi was installed as President, along with Sherman F. Raphael as Vice President, Mrs. Patricia R. Gaennie as Recording Secretary, Hall Townsend as Corresponding Secretary and Dr. Leon B. Walker, Jr., as Treasurer. Governors are Arthur M. Samson, Chairman, Lester G. Davis, John Gesser, Walter d'Hemecourt and John M. Nash. With a membership of 103, the Club meets the third Thursday monthly in the American Legion Hall, Royal and Conti Sts. Guests and prospective members are invited. — PATRICIA R. GAIENNIE, Rec. Sec.

Since last year's show in the Park Terrace Sky Room at Buckeye Lake was most satisfactory to those who attended, the Central Ohio Coin Club will hold its annual coin show there again this year on August 5, from 9 A.M. to 6 P.M. The Buckeye Lake is near Newark, Ohio, and noncollectors may enjoy the fine facilities for swimming, boating, fishing, skating or bowling. Another attraction for all is the park's free picnic facilities. Club President Charles S. Oder will be glad to furnish other information upon inquiry to Box 663, Newark, or phone 326-1571. — CHARLES S. ODER, Pres.

At its May 9 meeting, the North Kansas City Coin Club elected these officers: President Joe Hennessey, Vice President Leonard McClanahan, Secretary Mrs. Glen C. Temple and Treasurer E. G. Kinder. — MRS. GLEN C. TEMPLE, Sec.

The Big Spring (Texas) Coin Club, formed in March, 1961, held its first observance of National Coin Week this year with a display in the show window of Prager's store and a proclamation signed by Mayor George Zachariah. The local newspaper gave it a nice writeup in which the Mayor was quoted as saying "I am deeply impressed with the program of the Club and its national organization to help reduce delinquency in our youth. I can readily see how easy it would be to become intensely interested in coin collecting." With a membership of about 150, meetings are held the second Thursday monthly in the Crawford Hotel. Club officers are: President Dale Smith, Vice President Vernon Winchester, Treasurer H. Yeager, and Secretary Joe Meanner.

Approaching its seventh anniversary with a membership of over four hundred, the San Fernando Valley Coin Club is headed by the following officers: President Thomas H. Wood, Vice Presidents Walter Snyder and Milton Doctor, Secretary Gladys Blood, and Treasurer Rodney Bennett. Governors are George Bennett, Anthony L. Miller, Murray Singer, Russell Snyder, Earl Glen Whitehead and C. R. Young. Meetings are held the second Monday monthly at the Y.M.C.A. in Burbank, Cal. — JACK C. MACKAY, Corr. Sec.

At the May meeting of Culver City Coin Club, Carolyn Nestrick gave a talk on Chinese cash. A complement to her talk was a two-case display of many varieties of the coins with the round or square holes, the kind most collectors toss away or regard as being without merit. But due to her perseverance in collecting and delving into the history of these pieces, they are rising in our estimation. Her talk contributed much to our knowledge and enjoyment of Chinese history and coinage. China, says Carolyn, was the first country to mint coins and to issue paper currency. Max Wedertz spoke on the coins minted especially for use at the Culion Leper Colony situated on an island off the shores of the Philippines. These coins were struck at the Manila Mint from 1913 to 1930, during which time only about 175,000 were minted. Many of them are quite difficult to obtain, so it was a treat to view his splendid display of these infrequently seen coins. The two speakers are, respectively, Secretary and President of the Society for International Numismatics. Other exhibits won the Club's participation ribbons for Thelma Case, Elizabeth Goodson and Eric Warner. — The Four C Journal

The Trenton Numismatic Club invites all collectors to its first coin convention on September 29 at the Trenton War Memorial Building near the New Jersey State capitol. There will be an auction conducted by Norman Pullen of Central Jersey Coin and Supply Center, many outstanding exhibits and thirty-two bourse dealers. The Club's Curator, Alex A. Candelori, is chairman and may be contacted at 116 Anderson St., Trenton

10, N. J. Other officers are: John Avonsato, President; Norman Pullen, Vice President, Janet Pullen, Secretary; and Richard Burd, Treasurer. — ALEX A. CANDELORI

A specialist in large cents of 1793-1807, Doug Smith spoke at the June 6 meeting of the Yonkers Coin Club. His educational talk on the different varieties of these coins, how he started specializing in them, and the "then and now" of obtaining choice material was the feature of the meeting. After the talk, Doug answered questions on his specialty. The Club will resume regular meetings in September and anyone wishing information about joining may contact Frank Morra, Sr., at the Gramatan Coin Shop, 76 Gramatan Ave., Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

At the May meeting of the Club of Illinois Numismatists, Homewood, Hugh M. Knight read a paper on coins of New Zealand, giving the history of this coinage and referring to pieces in his exhibit which included current mint sets, the 1933 series, coins issued for the Royal visit, and the 1953 coronation proof set. Robert Feiber displayed and discussed a "toned" 1885 proof half dollar. Paul Otis displayed proof sets of 1862 and 1898. Much interest and discussion was raised by Alison Schwenger telling of her experiences in sending a Lincoln cent to persons in over a hundred countries, and receiving coins from many of the countries in return. These coins were used with a world map for an NCW display, in which this Club won first place in Class B. The response to her letters was surprising and led many to ask her for names and addresses so that they might write also. She read excerpts from several letters which indicate that such a project can win goodwill, even behind the Iron Curtain. The question was raised if it might not be possible for someone to get names and addresses of those who would like to exchange letters in other countries. — LOIS OTIS, Publicity

A change in dates of the Northwest Georgia Coin Club's Fall show has been announced by President Don Milton. It has been delayed one week to September 1 and 2 to avoid conflict with the Blue Ridge Numismatic Association's show the previous weekend in Atlanta. Our show will be held in the General Forest Hotel, 436 Broad St., Rome, where meals, lodging and abundant parking space are available. Fifty bourse tables at $10 are being reserved on a first come, first served basis. There will be auction sessions at 2 P.M. on Saturday and Sunday, with all bids being from the floor. Maximum security will be provided around the clock. Registration will be free and, following the close of the bourse at 6 P.M. Sunday, there will be a dinner in the hotel's Chinese Room at only $2 to all who register for the show. Places of interest in our city include the famed Berry Schools where the world's largest overspout type waterwheel is in operation. Also the bronze statue given to this "City of Seven Hills" by Rome, Italy, in 1929 as a token of friendship. Show Chairman is Mel F. Ward, Box 726, Rome, Ga. — PAUL WACASTER, Corr. Sec.

The Austin, Texas Coin Club has the unhappy duty to say that its immediate past president, Mrs. Dolly-Maude Harris, suffered a broken leg in a fall on Easter Sunday. Dolly-Maude is best known to many ANA members as General Chairman of National Coin Week. Her recovery from the accident is proceeding nicely but some of her NCW activities had to be directed from a bed in Seton Hospital. The Club also announces that Fred Bentley has been appointed Acting Secretary-Treasurer to replace Jimmie Ashley who has accepted a position with the Continental Oil Company in the Houston area. We meet the second Wednesday evening monthly in the Travis County Court House and have an average attendance of about sixty. — ROBERT E. GREENWOOD, Pres.

A. Wilson, former editor and publisher of the American Standard Coin Book, spoke on his experiences as a coin collector. He became interested in the hobby in 1907 while with the Sovereign Bank of Canada. In 1930 he objected to the advertisements for the 1913 Liberty head nickel that implied it was an authentic coin, while the facts showed that it was not minted officially. He felt that this was misleading to collectors, and his desire to correct the situation led to the publishing of his catalog. The meeting closed with an auction in which a VG 1925 Canadian nickel sold for $20. — ALAN BEARDSHAW, Publ. Chm.

Among the important numismatic activities this Fall is the convention of Greater Ozarks Numismatic Society at the Goldman Hotel in Fort Smith, November 2-4. Bourse tables at $10 for the three days and other information about the affair can be secured from the Secretary-Treasurer at Box 628, Fort Smith, Ark. — D. F. LUDWICK, Sec.-Treas.

The Fall convention of Louisiana Numismatic Association will be held in New Orleans on November 2-4 with the Crescent City Coin Club as host. James H. Cohen, 319 Royal St., New Orleans 16, La. is general chairman and will be pleased to hear from dealers interested in the fifty bourse tables available at $45, which will include certain extras. The Madison Coin Club met June 11 in the Sellory Room of the State Historical Society Library, forty-one present. Special congratulations were given to A. Gordon Gill, whose display of U. S. coins took the trophy for best in its class at the Central States Numismatists Society convention in Milwaukee and Best of Show trophy at the Numismatists of Wisconsin convention in Appleton. Of special interest to members was Myron Bergenske's account of being robbed of $4,000 in coins shortly after our last meeting. They were removed from his locked car in the early morning hours on May 25th. The coins were housed in three red, loose-leaf binders and were under his coat on the front seat. The car was entered by jimmying the ventilator window. Among the coins taken were: A complete set of Barber dimes with from 1 to 5 of each date, including three 1895-Os and several 1913-S, two being in AU condition; many Liberty Head quarters, including two 1913-S in G and VG-F; and a set of Liberty standing—complete except the 1916—including many early BU examples, a few 1919-S&D VG-F, and five 1923-S. Bergenske has offered a reward for the return of part or all of this collection.

His insurance will cover only about $100. This prompted a discussion on insurance, and plans are being made for at least one insurance man to attend our meeting on July 9 as a speaker. — RONALD L. CALKINS, Corr. Sec.

In a well attended meeting on May 26, members and guests of Toronto Coin Club listened with lively interest while Professor W. P. Wallace, FRNS, Ph.D., of University College in Toronto, outlined the evidence for believing that the first issue of Athenian "owls" may have been as late as 510 BC. His hearers were more than willing to believe that the new date will be accepted generally as soon as his forthcoming monograph on the subject has been published. Bruce Brace, a regional director of CNA, expressed grateful appreciation to Professor Wallace on behalf of the audience. Bruce's excellently arranged display of coins from republican Rome drew clusters of observers, another proof that the classical age has not lost its appeal. Junior member Jeff Snider, 132 Caribou Rd., Toronto 12, was installed as Club Archivist by Ken Bunnett in a brief ceremony. Will members be so good as to send Jeff such clippings as are likely to prove useful for numismatic reference? But do not expect Jeff to send an acknowledgement; moreover, be sure to date the item and add the source of it. Mrs. Louise Graham, our President, welcomed Mrs. John S. Wilkinson, who accompanied her husband, the honored President of CNA; and Miss Phillipa Wallace, who accompanied her father, the distinguished speaker of the evening. — H. A. CRAIG, Editor

Henry Banner of Dayton, Ohio, was appointed A.N.A. representative of the Dayton Coin Club at its June meeting. About sixty members were in attendance. — DONNA SOULE, Sec.

For reservations or information, write to Everett Williamson, Box 43, East Memphis Station, Memphis 11, Tenn. — EVERETT WILLIAMSON, Chm.

Plaques and ribbons won for exhibits at the CSNA convention in Sacramento were shown by members who also reported on the affair.

Lesley G. Lodge read his prize-winning paper on "Our Lowly Penny" at the May meeting, which featured copper coins of the world. Lesley described the purchasing power of the cent from the early 1880s to date, substantiating prices with pages from early mail order catalogs which he displayed.

Our forty-seventh anniversary was celebrated by as many members and guests at a banquet at Forest Lodge & Catering in June. The Secretary was honored with a suitably inscribed plaque for her "Outstanding Service to Numismatics and Numismatists." Since joining the Society in 1942, she has served six consecutive years as secretary and five as editor of our monthly bulletin; in addition she contributed a number of articles to the Society's yearly contests. Following the banquet, we enjoyed a free bingo game with numismatic prizes. — MRS. HARRY CUTLER, Sec.

Announcement of the death of "Bill" Boston on June 12 saddened members of Philadelphia Coin Club at its June 19 meeting at the Bellevue Stratford Hotel. Bill has been active in numismatics for many years and contributed widely to many phases of it, and will be missed by all of us. Co-chairmen Art Sipe and Bob Ferris reported on plans for the MANA convention to be held here October 19-21. Sipe reported on the Lewis M. Reagan Memorial Fund also, and it was unanimously voted that the Club donate $25 to it. Only juniors were allowed to bid in the auction of thirty-nine lots donated by members, the proceeds of $50 going into our memorial fund. Chairman Bill Betz reported that around five hundred persons attended our Spring coin show, including about forty bourse dealers. The directors voted to purchase $25 in books from the memorial fund in the name of our first president and A.N.A. Secretary, the late Lewis M. Reagan. — BERT P. JONES, Vice Pres.

Although the Dearborn Coin Club will not hold meetings in July and August — resuming on September 4 — its publication Scripta will be continued during the summer. We invite other clubs which issue a paper or bulletin to send us a copy at P. O. Box 2367, Dearborn, Michigan, and we will send them a copy of ours in return. It is felt that this exchange of publications, with permission to reprint material, will be mutually helpful. Be sure to give your mailing address. — RICHARD TOMCZAK, Sec.

Sears and all will be in readiness for a great show in San Francisco on September 7-9. — ROY HILL, Publicity

For larger space, this show will be held in the VFW Home in Mechanicsburg, which will accommodate fifty bourse tables, has ample parking facilities with hotels and motels nearby. General Chairman is John Mull, 30 Hockersville Road, Hershey, who will accept applications for bourse tables and requests for other information. Other clubs may be interested to know that we have decided, on the basis of past experience, not to admit children under sixteen unless accompanied by an adult. — L. R. LINDGREN, Publ. Chm.

Maurice Gould, one of the founders and a past president of the Collectors Club of Boston, was honored at the June 12 meeting. Past President Andrew Scott spoke briefly on the role Maurice played in founding the Club and in its growth to over a hundred members, and presented him with an honorary life membership. Ed Schuman of Brooklyn, president of Queens County Coin Club, gave us a fascinating talk on patterns. He credited his wonderful collection to Andy Scott who advised him over ten years ago to specialize in one field. Ed's detailed knowledge and remarkable collection, which includes two gold stellae, gave the members another numismatic evening to be remembered. A silver bowl and an honorary membership were given to Schuman in appreciation for his presentation. — MARIAN HIRSCHDEL, Publ. Sec.

The Fort Worth Coin Club, which showed its ability to put on a good show when it was host to the TNA convention in 1960, will hold its own first annual show on November 10-11 at the Hotel Texas. The thousands of collectors in the Fort Worth-Dallas area, as well as those at a greater distance, are invited and promised a real Texas show. Dealers should write promptly to bourse chairman Jimmy Nash, 14311 P. O. Box, Fort Worth 17, for tables at only $15 for the two days. The grand ballroom, where all activities will be, is to be available for setting up Friday evening. Hotel Texas has set aside a hundred rooms and visitors are urged to make reservations early to the Hotel or to Mrs. J. C. Jenkins, 800 W. Waggoman St., Fort Worth 10, Texas. She will be pleased to answer other inquiries about the affair, also. — MRS. L. J. ROBINSON, Scribe

At the June 25 meeting of Peninsula Coin Club, many interesting and unusual items in keeping with "A Night in Mexico" were exhibited. New President Harold Moberg feels that the fourteen exhibitors out of an attendance of fifty indicates the fine interest shown in our meetings. "Oriental Monies" will be the theme of the exhibits at the August 27 meeting at the Palo Alto Community Center. All collectors who may be in the area at the time, as well as those who reside here, are cordially invited to attend. — ROY HILL

Father's Day was enjoyed by some two hundred collectors from Texas, Louisiana and California as the East Texas Numismatic Association sponsored a picnic at Lake Murvaul near Carthage. Being the oldest father present, Dr. T. L. Hurst of Center, Texas, cut the lovely cake presented to all the fathers present by Mrs. Doris Martin of Houston. Besides the picnic dinner, there was coin buying and swapping, boating, swimming and just visiting during the pleasant day. This Association was formed to be a governing body for the clubs in Center, Jacksonville, Longview, Lufkin, Marshall, Nacogdoches and Tyler, and to sponsor a coin convention and show annually in the East Texas area. Newly elected officers are: President Dick Markwardt, Vice President Jack Setzer, and Secretary Cliff Estes.

Few club conventions have the quality of auction material that was put up by Michael Kolman of Federal Brand Enterprises at the Warrensville Heights Coin Club affair at the Shaker Motel-Hotel on June 8-10. A flowing hair "Stella" of 1879 went for $5300 to a purchaser who had placed a limit of $5800 on his bidding for it. A brilliant proof 1895 silver dollar fetched $2250, the BU 1877 Indian cent brought $800, and brilliant proof Indian cents brought more than twice "redbook" prices in some cases. — ROBERT OBOJSKI

The program of the June meeting of Evansville Coin Club consisted of a slide presentation of "Double Struck Small Cents" by R. R. MacDonald. It was decided to hold the next two meetings at the McCurdy Hotel because the Museum isn't air conditioned. We had some discussion on how to improve our meetings so as to increase attendance. — BETTYE KLAUSS, Sec.

Plans for the California State Numismatic Association's thirty-first semi-annual convention on November 1-4 are practically complete. With the grand ballroom of the Lafayette Hotel in downtown Long Beach reserved for the biggest crowd ever to attend a numismatic event in California, Chairman Charles M. Johnson and assistants E. L. Sims and Bill Wisslead urge all collectors to make plans to be on hand. As this is written, a few bourse tables are available at $65. Dean A. Duffy, 4467 Linden, Long Beach will be glad to hear from interested dealers. Application blanks for exhibit space may be obtained from Ken Young, 3125 Mariquita St., Long Beach 3. The convention theme, "Numismatics in the Future," is being worked into the Friday evening forum by Sol Alexander. And the DonLow Company is preparing one of its bid board type auctions which have proved so satisfactory at recent affairs. In addition to an outstanding convention, visitors can find many unusual vacation attractions nearby, including Disneyland, Knotts Berry Farm and Marineland. So, if at all possible, come to Long Beach for this November 1-4 numismatic treat. — IDA MAE GRIFFIN, Publ. Chm.

Howard D. Gibbs furnished information in an entertaining manner to the eighty attending the May 31 meeting of Pittsburgh Numismatic Society with a talk on "Odd and Curious Money of the World." Although the time was short for adequate coverage of the subject, Howard still outlined the story of money from earliest beginnings to the present, explaining the forms and usages of its equivalent in various countries, races and civilizations. Anecdotes and personal experiences as well as specimens from his collection rounded out the talk. Although he has secured items from many places, one of his favorites is a piece of "boomerang" money obtained right in Pittsburgh. Incidentally, Gibbs wishes his friends to know that reports of his death are both premature and erroneous.

The Society's meeting of June 28 featured exhibits by members Baker, DeVos and Rennick, including such unusual items as a split planchet nickel, silver and bronze errors of the Executive Branch series of medals, a one ounce gold disc and the coronation medals from Canada, the four coin proof set from Ceylon commemorating the 2500th anniversary of Buddhism, and the two Mexican commemorative gold pieces of 1961. The three exhibitors were thanked and congratulated by President Ridgeway for their unusual display. It may be expected that these items will be among the exhibits at the coin show to be held October 13-14 in the Sherwyn Hotel in Pittsburgh, sponsored jointly by PNS and South Hills Coin Club. Although bourse space is sold out, Dr.

Patton, show chairman, urged members to bring their exhibits out to fill space that is still available. — HARRY C. BARTLEY, Numis. Corr.

At a recent meeting of Coos County Coin Club, the officers for the 1962-63 year were elected as follows: Lorin Atkins, President; Mrs. Lew Calvert, Vice President; Russ Stillman, Secretary; Directors Felix Duke, Merle Girtan and Rudy Love. Junior member Stephen Cox was placed on the Board; and the writer, also a junior member, was appointed publicity manager-historian. Created were the offices of senior and junior host and hostess, filled by Larry Baker, Jerry Norton and Mrs. Felix Duke whose duties it will be to greet and introduce new members and guests at each meeting. Our meetings are held the second Sunday afternoon monthly in the Courtel Coos Bay Restaurant in Coos Bay, Ore. — RICHARD ADAMSON, Pub. Mgr.

R. B. Carter was a most interesting speaker on "Collecting Coins from Circulation" at the May 25 meeting of Monterey Park Coin Club. One of his favorite projects is making displays so interesting to the juniors that, before they realize what is happening, they are coin collectors. Carter displayed a Lincoln cent set from circulation; other displays were by Eric Gray and Walter Holzworth. It was a successful meeting in commemorating our seventh year, during which period we have grown from fifteen to two hundred and thirty members. — VERA SCHYMONS, Corr. Sec.

Charles G. Colver addressed a captive audience when he spoke on British Commonwealth coinage at the May 21 meeting of Santa Barbara Coin Club. Members agreed after that this talk was by far the most outstanding heard in sometime. Colver spoke from his exhibit, picking coins at random and telling a little bit of the history behind each. One album contained spaces for 144 different coins, but he said that there are actually more than 175 different places whose coins would be considered in the British Colonial series. He briefly touched the crowns, telling us that he had on display a complete collection with one exception. Included were the Canadian silver dollars; the South African crowns, which he feels are much more attractive than the Canadian dollars, all three Hong Kong dollars (1866, 1867 and 1868), Straits Settlement, Cyprus, Southern Rhodesia, Bermuda, Ceylon, New Zealand (but lacking the Wātangi), and the British trade dollars. He explained that the British trade dollars were used up to 1935. These coins were struck at three different mints: Bombay, Calcutta and London, with three languages, Malayan, Chinese and English. He discussed the English crowns first struck in 1551 by Edward VI through the years, including the George II "Lima" crowns, which were made from Spanish bullion. This silver was mined in Peru by the Indians, shipped to Manila, captured by the British Navy and then minted in England. He discussed the Bengal rupee, Gwallor and Travancore coins, the Tibet rupee where the ruler's portrait was purposely engraved to look very much like that of Queen Victoria. He said he felt that Hawaii should be included in this series because the Islands were originally called the Sandwich Islands and were discovered by an Englishman. In fact, a piece of ground on which the monument to Captain Cook stands, under which he is buried, is actually the property of the British Crown to this date. One interesting story he told was how the 1887 new type English sixpence was the exact size and design of the gold half sovereign even to the milled edge, and these were gold-plated and passed onto unsuspecting citizens. He displayed a set of gold sovereigns which is the only coin struck at all seven British mints just as the U. S. $5 gold was also issued in all seven Mints. He explained that the Heaton and King's Norton Cross Mints were private ones used to strike coins when the work load at official Mints was too heavy. He displayed the copper cartwheel which weighs two ounces, and the 1/16th farthing of Queen Victoria. Following his talk, Charles answered questions from the floor and then discussed the exhibit with members during the refreshment break. — GWEN SENTIS, Sec.

At the tenth anniversary convention of the South Dakota Coin and Stamp Association the name was changed by substituting the word "Association" for the former "Club." The two hundred and fifty attendance included thirty exhibitors and nineteen bourse dealers. It was held in the Mobridge City Auditorium on June 9 and 10, with the Bridge City Coin and Stamp Club as host. Exhibit judges William W. Cole, Bert Harsche and Colby C. Uhlir named the following winners: Best in Show to Curtis B. Mateer, U. S. coins — Elva Frei, Lester A. Bell and J. R. Fiksdal; foreign coins — L. J. Jackson, Joe W. Masters and J. R. About one hundred attended the banquet in the Moose Home, at which Eugene Demko of Columbus, Neb., was the speaker and J. R. Plank, Secretary-Treasurer (Mrs.) Muriel Himrich. Newly elected to the Board of Directors was Edwin Kampen. The Association voted to convene at Yankton on June 15 and 16, 1963. In memory of Leo Heibel, a dedicated numismatist and one of the organizers who did important work in getting the Association started, the Leo Heibel Memorial Trophy was initiated and will be awarded to the best exhibit of U. S. coins each year. Leo, who was a charter member and past president of the Association, passed away following heart surgery on March 11, 1962. — MURIEL HIMRICH, Sec.-Treas.

The Western Reserve Numismatic Club held its 488th meeting on June 13, and enjoyed a talk on bank notes by Bill Halliwell. He displayed a tray of these old notes and told the history of many. One of special interest was a $1 note with $2 and $3 printed on it also. Other fine exhibits were by Edward Leukart, Rudy Leukart and Dorothy Humitsch. Life membership was extended to Fred Brew, who has been a member of this Club for thirty years. — FRED N. HAHLEN, Sec.

SAMUEL W. WOLFSON

Jacksonville, Florida

Part One United States Gold Coins

October 12th & 13th, 1962

GOLD DOLLARS: Complete! Many of the scarcer mintmarks are exceptionally choice and nearly all of the Philadelphia mint coins are PROOFS.

QUARTER EAGLES: Nearly complete. This is the first extensive offering in many years of one of the most popular and sought after series. It contains virtually every date and variety struck from 1796 thru 1834. In the Liberty Head series—it features a SUPERB 1841; and numerous choice Proofs. It highlights the 1848 “CAL,” 1854 “S,” 1856 “D,” 1863, 1864, 1865, latter three in Proof and many other rare and scarce coins in top condition.

THREE DOLLAR GOLD: Absolutely COMPLETE! Featuring the 1875 and 1876; it highlights the fact that nearly THIRTY of these coins are GEM BRILLIANT PROOFS.

FIVE DOLLAR SERIES: Magnificent! Fifty coins in the early series prior to 1834. Spotlighting the 1819, 1821, 1824, 1825, 1827, 1828/7, 1828 etc. The highlight of the series is the EXTREMELY RARE 1854 “S”—one of the few known specimens. Extraordinary condition in the sought-after Charlotte and Dahlonega mints. All of the rare Philadelphia mint coins in the 1860-1878 period are offered — nearly all of which are in BRILLIANT PROOF condition. The scarce dates, mintmarks and varieties are almost complete in the finest condition possibly available.

TEN DOLLAR SERIES: EXTRAORDINARY! Complete with all varieties from 1795 thru 1804 featuring the 1798 over '97 with stars 7 x 6 — one of the few known specimens. The Liberty and Indian Head series are complete in all dates and mints, except for the 1875 and 1876. The general overall condition of the coins contained in this series is exceptional.

TWENTY DOLLAR SERIES: Virtually Complete! Lacking only the 1854 "O," 1856 "O" and 1927 "D" to be absolutely complete. Featuring BRILLIANT PROOFS of 1859, 1860, 1861, 1862, 1863, 1870, 1872, 1874, 1879, 1881, 1882, 1883, 1884, etc. The average condition of the coins contained in this series is particularly outstanding, especially the difficult "O" and "CC" mint coins.

COMMEMORATIVE GOLD: Absolutely complete including a gem Panama-Pacific set.

Your coins are not only properly protected but also conveniently classified by dates and types. 18 folders hold all coins from Victorian 1860 to the present day Elizabethan issues.

Each folder has the popular Whitman "open-flat" feature. You view all your coins at one time. Coinage figures, mint marks as well as brief historical notes give you valuable information about each series.

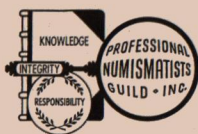

Two deluxe Whitman Bookshelf albums house a complete type set of 20th Century British coins. Crystal-clear acetate slides protect your coins and give you two-side visibility.

WE WILL SEE YOU IN DETROIT

Q. David Bowers, James F. Ruddy, Henry G. Spangenberg and Robert McAusland of Empire Coin Company, Inc. will attend the A.N.A. convention at the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel August 15th through August 19th, 1962.

WE WILL HAVE OUR CHECKBOOK WITH US! WE WANT TO BUY

If you have any of the following to sell, see EMPIRE first:

- Choice and rare gold coins including Proofs, all issues before 1834 and territorial pieces. Top prices paid.
- Choice silver before 1892, and particularly issues before 1807. We urgently need these coins and will pay well to get them.
- Choice copper coins including Lincoln cents (Unc. only), Indian cents and Large cents. All half cents wanted. We will disregard the catalog values when buying early dates or Proofs. For instance, we will pay a minimum of $400.00 for any Proof half cent 1840 to 1848.
- We are also major buyers of Patterns, Colonials, Encased Postage stamps, rare numismatic books and literature, Hawaiian material, C.S.A. coins and similar items.
- We urgently want choice crowns of the world, select coins of Great Britain and colonies, foreign patterns and other similar worthwhile material.

TO PROVIDE FOR OUR LARGE EXHIBIT OF UNITED STATES AND FOREIGN CHOICE COINS AND RARITIES WE WILL HAVE DOUBLE THE USUAL DEALER EXHIBIT SPACE.

Whether you want to Buy, Sell or say "Hello," stop and visit with us. We will look forward to seeing you there.

MONTROSE IS BACK

We have not advertised material for sale for some time due to the lack of availability of nice material. Having been fortunate in being able to have bought some desirable material we offer here a few choice items properly graded and not too often offered for sale. With the new Guide Book out and the prices for many items already obsolete listed there it would be wise to take into consideration the availability rather than prices.

All are singles only. Alternate choice will be appreciated. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

CHEMICAL MAGIC

"CCC" HAS A PARTNER

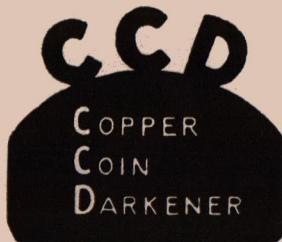

Our "CCC" has no equal for cleaning coins. It has been used for many years by thousands of collectors and dealers, and is established as a numismatic accessory of merit.

EASY TO USE

CLEANS IN SECONDS

ECONOMICAL

By mail — a 3-oz. bottle, postpaid in the U. S. or Canada, $1.00.

This new product is a fitting partner for "CCC." Our "CCD" will restore the color of age to copper coins which have been cleaned. It seems like magic when this clear white liquid darkens the coins. Simple to use. Just soak the coins until you have attained the shade of color desired.

By mail — a 4-oz. bottle, postpaid in the U. S. or Canada, $1.00.

ATTENTION DEALERS — "CCC" is stocked by many jobbers, and "CCD" soon will be. If not readily available from your jobber you may send us $4.00 for six 4-oz. bottles of either "CCC" or "CCD," postpaid. Six-packs not assorted. Or you may order 1 dozen 4-oz. bottles of either, or assorted, for $7.75 postpaid, or 2 dozen for $15.00 postpaid.

ATTENTION JOBBERS — You are overlooking a bet if you are not handling these fast-selling, nationally advertised numismatic accessories. Please inquire (on your letterhead).

The Original

PRESIDENTIAL ART MEDALS

Three series of high quality, finely sculptured medals are now available in the original Presidential Art historic medals program: the Presidential series, the Statehood series and the Signers of the Declaration of Independence series.

Each issue is struck in platinum, silver and bronze. The platinum and silver are serially numbered and of limited issue. This, plus the practical size (slightly larger than a half dollar), the high quality and fine sculpturing of the medals, accounts for the ever increasing value of Presidential Art medals.

The President of the United States was the first purchaser of the first-in-a-series Kennedy medal. He uses these medals for distribution on good will missions. The following bronze medals are still available at the original issue price of $2.50: Kennedy, Lincoln, Washington, F. D. Roosevelt, Wilson, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Hancock.

A series of beautifully sculptured, numismatically designed medals commemorating famous coin designers. The Augustus Saint-Gaudens and Victor D. Brenner medals, the first two in the COIN MEDALS series, are now ready for immediate shipment, and the Charles E. Barber medal will be ready in June.

COIN MEDALS are sculptured in very high relief on both obverse and reverse by master artist Robert Schabel, and quality struck by The Metal Arts Company of Rochester, New York. The obverse of every COIN MEDAL depicts the finest medallic work of the artist being commemorated, and the reverse, as shown above, symbolizes his work in coins.

COIN MEDALS are issued in bronze, and in a serially numbered pure silver issue not to exceed 5000. Each medal is three inches in diameter, and weigh close to a half-pound in silver, so they are not to be confused with ordinary coin size medals.

70% CASH ADVANCE

THAT'S RIGHT ! ! ! ! We will advance 70% of the fair retail value of your collection immediately upon receipt. We will then sell your collection at one of our forthcoming auction sales and you will receive your final settlement within 30 days after the sale. Our commission rates are always reasonable.

During the time that your coins are in our possession they are stored in our protected and insured vaults. When you receive your advance check, if for any reason you are not satisfied with the amount of the check, just return it and your coins will be returned postpaid.

In many cases our advance will be almost equal to others offer of outright purchase.

If you are not currently on our mailing list, just drop us a postcard with your full name and address and we will place your name on our catalogue mailing list.

REMEMBER — It is not too late to have your collection included in our next outstanding auction sale.

OUR SALES ARE USUALLY HELD IN THE PARKER HOUSE

We are always in need of desirable numismatic material and will be happy to travel anywhere in the world to acquire it — either for auction or for outright purchase provided the value of the material warrants it.

NO COLLECTION IS TOO LARGE — We will furnish bank references upon request.

COLLECTORS OF U. S. PAPER CURRENCY

For half a century I have had an intensive interest in collecting every series of U. S. money. Have proudly owned all U. S. coins and currency, except half a dozen of the greatest rarities (for instance, I never owned an 1804 dollar or a $10,000 gold certificate). Maybe, then, I am qualified to express an opinion, which is: the most fascinating segment of numismatology is collecting and studying paper currency.

For five years now I have been distributing among younger collectors my extensive currency holdings. All purchasers of my notes are delighted with their superb condition. I have a few left. Plan to take representative specimens of currency (and a few rarities) to the Detroit Convention. Whether you collect types, series, signature combinations, seals, cut or uncut sheets, maybe I can help. Please bring along your want list.

As was expected, Bob Friedberg's 4th Edition reflects increased prices. More collectors and short supply of acceptable notes insures a continued rise in prices. Personally, I prefer U. S. currency to most of the stocks on the Big Board in New York.

1962 LITTLE WORLD SERIES

COMMEMORATIVE

Announcing the only commemorative piece which will be issued in North or South Dakota during 1962. This commemorative is being issued by the Lloyd Spetz Post Number 1 of the American Legion and by the North Dakota Coin Club, both of Bismarck, North Dakota. The medal was originated to pay tribute to American Legion Baseball, and to commemorate the fact that for the second time in its history, the Little World Series will be held in Bismarck.

A limited number of these pieces, just 10,000, have been struck. 2,000 are nickel and 8,000 are bronze.

The obverse side of this medal portrays a baseball, with the stitches. In the center is the outline of a map of North Dakota. Shown holding a bat is Sunny Nodak, a symbol widely used in promoting North Dakota activities and products. On the left, within the map, is a replica of North Dakota's famous skyscraper capitol building. The reverse of this piece features the official American Legion emblem.

PRICE: $1.50 each in Nickel

FOREIGN COINS

Fashions change, interests ebb and flow. Just now interest in foreign coins is on the upswing. New collectors, new catalogues and new dealers are coming on the scene.

Since the late 1940's hundreds of collectors of foreign coins have been ordering regularly from my periodic lists. Many have turned to me when they came to sell their collections or their good duplicates.

List No. 86 is due out soon. Let me know if you'd like a copy. And let me know too whenever you have worthwhile foreign coins to sell.
